Millionaire's Bride Helps Keep Small Craft From Foundering

No One Realized Danger Until the Last Moment, Says Wreck Survivor

NEW YORK, April 20.—Mrs. John Jacob Astor was still in a highly nervous condition today, suffering from the shock of her experience on the Titanic. Her physician, Dr. Kimball, said that, in spite of her nervousness, it had been deemed best to let her talk freely with her relatives and attendants regarding the disaster. It was believed that this would serve to relieve her feelings.

Mrs. Astor's story of her experience, as repeated by the physician, is as follows:

"We had already retired when the jar of the collision came. We thought little of it, but Mr. Astor was interested and said he would go on deck and see what was the matter. I called my maid and put on a light dress, planning to follow him in a moment or two.

GO ON DECK TOGETHER.

"Pretty soon Mr. Astor came back and said he did not think that it was anything serious. The ship had grazed some drift ice, he said. We did not know then that it was a giant berg. He was very calm and so I was not alarmed. We put on ordinary light clothes and went on deck together.

"Everything was extremely quiet. No one was excited, least of all Mr. Astor and myself. We walked around and people began to pour up on deck. The excitement began to grow, but the ship seemed all right. Then the order was passed around to get out the boats, but nobody wanted to get into them and the first ones lowered were only partly filled.

"The situation did not begin to get grave until most of the boats were gone and there were only two left.

"Mr. Astor put me and my maid and nurse into one of the boats and stood calmly as the boat was being sent away. Before the boat was lowered he sent for some heavy wraps and furs for us. The boat pulled away from the Titanic and began almost immediately to ship water until it was up to my knees. I occupied my time bailing.

"Before the arrival of the Carpathia we picked up six men, two of whom died immediately after being put aboard."

Went Down With Child, Which He Sought to Save, in His Arms

Smith Failed to Reach the Nearest Lifeboat; Two Children Perish

NEW YORK, April 20.—Taking refuge on the bridge of the ill-fated Titanic,

CAPTAIN E. J. SMITH, master of the Titanic, and the huge liner that carried to sepulture in the ocean a vast ship's company.

Two little children remained by the side of Captain Smith, until that portion of the big ship had been swept by water. Survivors of the crew, who went down with the Titanic, but were saved by clinging to an overturned lifeboat, told today of their gallant commander's efforts to save the life of one of the children. He died a sailor's death and the little girl who had entrusted her life to his care died with him.

"He held the little girl under one arm," said James McGinn, a fireman, "as he jumped into the sea and endeavored to reach the nearest lifeboat. I took the other child into my arms as I was swept from the bridge deck. When I was plunged into the cold water I was compelled to release my hold on the child and I am satisfied that the same thing happened to Captain Smith.

SON OF GOVERNOR JOHNSON TO WED MISS AMY BOWLES

Engagement of Young Attorney and Oakland Belle Is Announced

Local society was a-buzz today when the news was made known of the engagement of Miss Amy Bowles of this city and Hiram Johnson Jr., son of Governor Johnson.

The engagement is of widespread interest because of the social prominence of both young people.

Miss Bowles is a bay city belle who has taken a prominent part in local society and the family home of the Bowles, "The Pines," on Union and McAdams streets, in the Claremont district, has been a rendezvous for numerous social functions.

Miss Bowles made her debut about two years ago and is extremely popular among the older as well as the younger set, for her genuine character and lovable personality.

Her parents, Mr. and Mrs. F. B. Bowles, are members of the exclusive society of the bay cities, and Mrs. Bowles is much beloved among local matrons. Her graciousness as a hostess and her social and philanthropic activities, are well known.

With Mrs. Frank Havens, Miss Bowles has made several trips East and has been much entertained by the former. Her hosts of friends here will vie with one another to entertain this latest addition to the list of brides-to-be.

The wedding date has not been set, but it is understood that it will take place shortly, probably during the next month or two.

Johnson is a graduate of the University of California and belongs to the Chi Phi fraternity. In whose activities he was prominent. He is at present practicing law in San Francisco.

After the marriage the young couple will live in Oakland.

"You're a Fool," Is Reply Given to German Lloyd Wireless Operator Who Answers S.O.S. Sent From Craft in Distress

Line of Travel Across Atlantic Moved Farther South as Result of Disaster in Which 1635 Persons Lost Their Lives; Heroic Tales Are Repeated

"BRUTALLY UNFAIR," IS CRY OF ISMAY

NEW YORK, April 20.—Appearing before the Senate Titanic investigating committee in a wheel chair Harold Bride, assistant wireless operator of the ill-fated ship who was disabled in the rescue, testified today that although the North German Lloyd liner Frankfurt was twenty miles nearer the Titanic than the Carpathia, no effort was made to give her news of the Titanic's sinking condition.

Bride testified that Phillips, the chief wireless operator, told the Frankfurt wireless man he was a fool and had better keep out. The Frankfurt, he said, was first to answer the Titanic's signals of distress. The reason no details were given the German ship, Bride said, was that they believed her operator could not understand.

Bride also testified to having received warnings of icebergs in the vicinity and to have delivered them to his superior officers, one to Captain Smith himself.

NEW YORK, April 20.—Nearly a week has passed since the Titanic, the greatest marine achievement in the history of the world, sank in midocean. Much of her story still is untold and many a day will pass before the world will fully comprehend the significance of the disaster.

The number of dead probably never will be exactly determined, inasmuch as the passenger list went down with the vessel. The number of survivors is fixed at 705 by the report of Captain Rostron of the Carpathia. The White Star line officials believe the death list totaled approximately 1635.

Tribute to Bravery of Men

The narratives gathered piecemeal from the liner's survivors pay a tribute without precedent to the bravery of the men of these modern days, a bravery of impulse, unstudied, unassuming and instinctive alike in steerage passenger, stoker and millionaire.

By common consent the churches of the world will set aside their pulpits tomorrow for reverent ceremonies and for mourning for the lost.

As to the needs of the living, ample provision is rapidly being made. The relief funds being gathered in New York and London already total far into the thousands. Most of the steerage passengers who reached New York distracted and penniless have already come to realize the generosity and hospitality of America. Clad, fed and housed, they will be given ample time to recover from the shock of their experience and will start their life in the new world with ample funds.

Thorough Investigation

The most complete story of the Titanic's fate yet obtained is being rapidly gathered in New York by members of the Senate investigating committee.

The committee has already listened to the testimony of J. Bruce Ismay, managing director of the White Star line; Captain Rostron of the Carpathia; Charles W. Lightholder, second officer of the Titanic, and others.

The witnesses called for today's session included H. J. Pittman, third officer of the Titanic; J. G. Roxhall, fourth officer; G. Lowe, also in an official position on the Titanic, and fifteen of the crew.

The committee has the assistance of George Uhler, chief

Troubled Over Titanic News, Finds Death in Sea

SANTA MONICA, April 20.—The body of Mrs. M. U. Scouler, said to have been a wealthy woman of St. Louis, Mo., was found in the ocean here today. She had jumped to her death some time last night. According to friends, Mrs. Scouler was much affected by the accounts of the Titanic disaster and it is believed that her mind gave way.

the passengers had been saved or that the Titanic was being towed to Hal-fax?

"No, sir."
"Did you know that such news was being published to the world?"

"If the White Star line sent a message Monday, reading: 'Rep. J. H.
Hughes, Huntington, W. Va.,—Titanic proceeding to Halifax. Passengers probably will land there Wednesday.
All safe; they did not obtain the information on what that is based from you.'"

"No, sir. I don't know that you obtained it from any other operator on the Carpathia?"

Senator Smith asked the witness if he had received any message from the time the Carpathia left the scene of the disaster until it reached New York

"No, sir," answered Cottam. "I reported the entire matter myself to the steamship Baltic at 10 o'clock Monday morning. I told them we had been to the wreck and had picked up as many of the passengers as we could."

SLEEPLESS DAYS.
Cottam repeated the testimony of yesterday and said he had been without sleep through Sunday, Monday, Tuesday and until late Wednesday morning. Senator Smith sought to have the witness designate the exact hour when he was relieved by Operator Bride, who had been taken aboard the Carpathia from the Titanic.

"I don't know, sir," said Cottam.
"I was up continuously and I lost track of the hours and days. I had from eight to ten hours sleep from the time we left the wreck until we arrived in New York."

"Did Bride do any sending in that time?" Senator Smith asked.
"Yes, sir; he sent the list of the third class passengers to the cruiser Chester."

"Any other message?"
"Several. I don't remember what they were. The records are on the Carpathia."

"Did you or Bride send any message declaring that the Titanic was being towed into Halifax?"

"No, sir," said the witness, with emphasis.
Senator Smith then called Harold S.
Bride, the surviving wireless operator of the Titanic. He was wheeled in an invalid's chair to the table where the committee sat.

PLACED UNDER OATH.
"Contrary to the usual procedure," said Smith, "I must place you under oath."

The witness, hand uplifted, listened while the senator repeated the oath.
Then he bowed in assent. Bride said he was a native of London, was 22 years of age and had learned his profession in a British school of telegraphy.

"What practical experience have you had?"
"I crossed to the States three times and to Brazil twice."

Bride remembered receiving and sending messages regarding the speed on trial tests. After leaving Southampton on the Titanic's fatal trip he was a native of London, was 22
years of age and had learned his profession in a British school of telegraphy.

"I don't remember, sir," said Bride.
"There was so much business Sunday."

He was asked if Captain Smith received or sent any messages Sunday.
"No, sir," was the reply.
"How do you know he did not?"
"Because I see the messages Mr.
Phillips takes when they are made up."

"Were those for Sunday made up?"
"No, they never were."

After testifying that he made no permanent record of the iceberg warning, Bride included he gave the memorandum of the warning to the officer on watch. The name of the officer he could not tell.

SMITH NOT TOLD.
"I know the officers by sight, but not by name," he said. He did not inform Captain Smith.
Bride said he saw Phillips in the operating room.
"He told me he thought the boat had been injured in some way and he expected it would have to go back to the builder," said Bride. Immediately the captain came in and said we had better send out a call for assistance. Phillips asked if he wanted to send a distress call. The captain said he did. "I could read what Phillips sent," C. D.

"How soon did he send a call?"
"As far as I know, immediately. I could not hear what he received, however."

CAPTAIN WARNED.
The witness told of having intercepted a message from the Californian intended for the Baltic, which told of the presence of three huge icebergs near the former vessel.
"I gave the message to the captain personally," he said.
The Californian was seeking the Baltic and I merely noted that it was an ice report and told the captain,"
he said.
In an effort to determine whether the signal "C Q D" might not have been understood by a passing ship,
Senator Smith called on Marconi.

Takes Three Oranges

$300,000

NEW YORK, April 20.—One of the cabin passengers of the Titanic, Major A. H. Peuchen of Toronto, left more than $300,000 in money, jewelry and securities in a box in his cabin when he left the ship.
He went back to his cabin for the box, but decided to take three oranges instead.

"The money seemed to be a mockery at that time," said the Major today. "The only trinket I saved was a little pin which I remembered had always brought me luck. I picked up the pin and three oranges instead of the money and documents."

ordered to man an oar.

FRIENDS JOIN IN PRAISING SOLDIER

Roosevelt Among Those Who Send Messages Regarding Major Butt.

WASHINGTON, April 20.—Captain
McCoey of the general staff of the army today received a telegram from Colonel Roosevelt as follows:
"I am deeply shocked and grieved about poor Archie Butt. If there is any news about him pray tell me."

Captain McCoey was a military aid to the former president.
The general staff published today some parts of the military record of Major Butt. The official record, dry and brief, discloses the remarkable versatility and ability of the young officer. Here are some of the points:

"A military student at the University of the South, Sewanee, Tenn., an author of novels, magazine articles and abstract military problems, quartermaster, and earned the highest commendations from Wm H. Taft, who as governor of the Philippines recommended him for appointment in the regular army, an exceptionally tactful and diplomatic aide de camp and generally efficient officer, according to the testimony of Theodore Roosevelt, a commendable and loyal worker in the Philippines, according to Lieutenant General Bates and one of the best volunteer captains and quartermasters ever seen, according to Major General Arthur MacArthur."

The White House made public several telegram from various parts of the country relating to the tragic death of Major Butt. One came from Governor Spry of Utah, which said:

"The people of this state are shaken and grieved by this terrible calamity. To you personally permit me to express my deep sorrow in the loss of your close personal friend, Major Butt."

W C Markham of Baldwin, Kas., wired that the church where Major Butt attended services with the President last September will hold memorial services Sunday.

Geo Hogue of the Courier Journal
Louisville, Ky., sent this inquiry:
"Must I put a wreath on Archie's picture?" I replied the boy.

Utah Woman Not

SALT LAKE CITY, April 20.—Mrs Irene C Corbett of Provo, Utah, was one of the best known class passengers of the Titanic. She was with her son, a young man, and her husband, who was a doctor, when the ship was wrecked.

It was learned that three of the fraternity were on board the Titanic and it is said that the three walked down the Carpathia's gang plank on Thursday night. Their friends said last night that they were playing bridge when the liner struck and that they were in the places in one of the last boats to leave.

One went last night into the places where the faces of these men are known, but not welcome, and heard the story ridiculed.

"You wouldn't catch that crowd napping if there was a chance to get away," was what was said when a man who knows was asked his opinion of the story. "Why, 'Doc' Owen has been in Europe for the last two years, and he couldn't get back if he wanted to. Jimmy Bell was here yesterday morning, and if anyone had known that Doc was coming he would."

NEW TALES OF HEROISM
RELATED BY SURVIVORS

Major Archibald Butt Held Back Frenzied
Men With Iron Bar

NEW YORK, April 20.—New tales of cool heroism of wonderful faithfulness and devotion are being told to enhance the grandeur of the Titanic wreck. And there were other tales to keep bright a burning flame of indignation against the officials of the White Star line, particularly against J. Bruce Ismay, managing director of that line.

The following are important developments, and some of them are significant:

Two hundred and ten of the 705 survivors were members of the crew of the Titanic. It was established that eighty-six men were amply sufficient to man the lifeboats.

Fifteen women in the first cabin perished.
The Carpathia brought in twenty widowed brides, who were on honeymoons when the ship went down.

Survivors said that the conduct of some of the crew in the lifeboats was brutal.

COLONEL ASTOR IS PRAISED.
Major Archibald Butt, Colonel Astor and others were praised again and again for their bravery. Butt, armed with an iron bar, held back the rush of steerage men and let the poor women and children up to the boats.

The last words of Benjamin Guggenheim—his dying message to his wife—were brought to her by a room steward:
"Tell her I played the game out straight and to the end. No woman shall be left aboard the ship because Ben Guggenheim was a coward. Tell her my last thoughts were of her and of our girls."

The hydrograph office ordered the lanes of Atlantic liners moved 180 miles southward.
The White Star line offices did not, as had been promised on Thursday, issue an official statement of the wreck of the Titanic and the causes leading thereto.

Major Arthur Peuchen of Toronto, Ont., who was impressed as an oarsman into one of the Titanic's lifeboats
and made his way to it by going down hand under hand along a rope, made the following statement:

"J Bruce Ismay knew of the presence of icebergs, but arrogantly disregarded the danger of them.
And when the Titanic was every instant facing the possibility of running into an ice mountain, Ismay dining Captain Smith, both of them in evening clothes, in a lower salon, when the captain, at least, should have been at his post of duty on the bridge."
"I know Ismay's knowledge of the iceberg danger from a conversation repeated to me on the Carpathia, when we were coming into port by Mrs. Ryerson of Philadelphia, who lost her husband and son."

"I have heard that she had heard a report that icebergs lay in the path of the ship and asked Ismay if he was not going to order the ship slowed down."

"Ismay replied that, on the contrary, they were going to go along fast."

Quartermaster Moody confirmed this by saying that the Titanic's officers had received orders to keep up speed in the hope of making a record.
A story of a well developed plot to kidnap the 202 members of the crew who were saved from the Titanic also gained wide circulation and caused much surprise.

It was said that Ismay had instructed Vice-President Franklin of the International Mercantile Marine to segregate the Titanic's men as soon as they arrived on the Carpathia.

WOULD HIDE CREW.
Ismay, it was asserted, urged Franklin to make every effort to smuggle the men into seclusion as soon as they landed on the pier and make speedy

In line with this charge wireless correspondence bearing on the sailing of the Cedric was disclosed. As it was passed by President Franklin, who is in charge of the White Star offices in New York, and Ismay, in addressing Franklin Ismay used the code address, "Telefrank."

Three urgent messages he sent to Franklin regarding the disposition of the crew follow:

portant. You should hold Cedric

Answer.
Telefrank, New York.—Think most unwise keep Titanic crew until Saturday. Strongly urge detaining Cedric and sailing midnight, is desirable.

Again it is apparent that if there was an answer to this dispatch it was not favorable to holding the Cedric, for "Yams" put through the following message:

Telefrank, New York.—Unless you have good and substantial reason for not holding Cedric, please arrange to do so. Most undesirable have crew

DRESSED AS WOMAN.
Mrs Fortune of Winnipeg told how she and her three daughters, Lucia, Marie and Alice, were rescued from the Titanic
after being separated from her husband and son, Charles. They were put in a boat with a Chinaman, an Italian stoker
and a man dressed in a woman's clothing.
Of all the occupants of this lifeboat, she said, only one, the stoker, could row, and Mrs Fortune's daughters took turns at
the oars.

When the collision occurred Mrs. Fortune and her daughters hurriedly dressed.
On the deck they were joined by Fortune and Charles Fortune, but at the stairway to the bow Mrs Fortune saw her husband

They did not realize that the ship was in danger, and did not even say good-by to the men as they parted. One of the girls, however, called back to Charles and Alice, were rescued from the Titanic
after being separated from her husband and son, Charles. They were put in a boat with a Chinaman, an Italian stoker
and a man dressed in a woman's clothing.
Of all the occupants of this lifeboat, she
said, only one, the stoker, could row, and Mrs Fortune's daughters took turns at
the oars.

Mrs Fortune and her three daughters were placed in the tenth boat that was lowered. They said it was terribly overcrowded. Four members of the crew were transferred to another boat as soon as the craft struck the water and there was concern among the passengers, mostly women as this left but one member of the crew to navigate the lifeboat.

The stoker, Mrs Fortune said, knew how to handle an oar tolerably well, but the Chinaman was of little use. The man dressed in woman's clothes did his best,
but did not seem familiar with an oar.
This man wore a woman's bonnet and a veil in addition to a skirt and blouse.

GLAMOR ON SHIP
LIKE DEATH CHANT

French Survivors Assert More Lives Could Have Been Saved.

PARIS, April 20.—Three French survivors—Ferdande Omont, Pierre Mareschale, son of the well-known French admiral and Paul Chevra, the sculptor, jointly cabled to the Matin a graphic narrative of the disaster to the Titanic, in which they repeatedly insist that more lives could have been saved if the passengers had not had such dogged faith that the Titanic was unsinkable. Several boats, they declare, could have carried double the number.

The three Frenchmen say they were playing bridge with a Mr Smith of Philadelphia when a great, crunching mass of ice packed up against the portholes. As they rushed on deck there was much confusion, but this quickly died down. One of the officers when questioned by a woman passenger humorously replied:

"Do not be afraid. We are merely cutting a whale in two."

Presently the captain appeared to become nervous and ordered all to put on their life preservers. The boats then were lowered, but only a few persons stirred, and several of the boats put off half empty, one with only fifteen in it.

When the Frenchmen's boat rowed off for half a mile the Titanic presented a fairy-like picture, illumined from stem to stern. Then suddenly the lights began to go out and the stern reared up high in the air.
An immediate clamor arose on all sides, and during the hour anguished cries rang out.

LIKE DEATH CHANT.
It was, say the narrators, like a great chorus chanting the refrain of death with wild obstinacy. Sometimes the cries died out, and then the tragic chorus began again, more terrible and more despairingly.

"Those cries pursued us and haunted us as we pulled away into the night," said the narrators. "Then one by one the cries ceased and only the noise of the sea remained."

"The Titanic was engulfed almost without a murmur. Its stern quivered in a final spasm and then disappeared."

The Frenchmen and their companions suffered terribly from the cold. They cried out to attract attention and a German baron emptied a revolver into the air. When the Car-pathia appeared a feeble chest went up from the boat, eyes staring, and which moved as swiftly as possible toward the liner.

The Frenchmen related tragic incidents happening as they were leaving the side of the Titanic. After all the ship's boats had been launched, most passengers who had gazed behind too long tried to embark on the collapsible raft, which worked badly.

Fifty persons climbed on to the raft, which was half-filled with water. One after another the passengers on the raft were drowned or perished from the cold. "When a corpse was found in the way it was thrown overboard, and only fifteen of the fifty who had taken refuge on the raft were saved," the Car-pathia.

"Colonel Astor and many of the others were superbly heroic, and the crew of the Titanic with sublime adnegation fulfilled its duties to humanity," says the narrative.

Two Little Boys
Found in Boat

NEW YORK, April 20.—Among the survivors of the disaster are two little boys, probably made orphans by the sinking of the liner. They are bright little French boys, 8½ and 1½ years old, and named Louis and Loto.

What their surname is known of their relatives. Some of the rescued Titanic passengers said they were in the second cabin in care of a man named Hoffman. According to the passenger list a "Mr. Hoffman" and two children were on board the ill-fated steamer.
Hoffman was not mentioned as having been rescued.

The two boys were found in one of the lifeboats without any clothes but were wrapped in blankets. As no one on the Carpathia claimed them, Miss Margaret Hays of this city, who was rescued from the Titanic, took them to her home, where she is keeping them in the hope that some of their relatives will be found. Miss Hays says they are re

HONEYMOONS END FOR 21 COUPLES

Score of Bride-Widows Mourn Husbands Lost in Disaster.

NEW YORK, April 20.—In New York today there are twenty young women who in the past few months have seen their happiness and their saddest days. They are the bride-widows of the Titanic. Only one of the twenty-one honeymoon couples on board the dead ship—Mr. and Mrs. George Harder of Brooklyn—were alive. The others have seen the pure white of the wedding gown changed into the sable habiliment of mourning.

One of the most pathetic bride-widows in the third cabin. She is Mrs. Adal Neeser, a pretty young Syrian of twenty-one. She said brokenly that she had been married only a few weeks ago and with her husband and two brothers had determined to seek fortune in the western land of promise. In the panic after the crash in the Atlantic, the young woman told how her husband and the two brothers had been swept over the side and drowned before her eyes.

George A. Harder and his young bride are at the home of his father in Brooklyn. They are dazed by their experiences.

Limit Vessels' Speed Demand of French

PARIS, April 20.—French shipping circles think the lesson learned from the disaster to the Titanic should be the necessity for an international agreement to put a stop to the absurd competition for speed between Europe and New York which leads the commanders of transatlantic steamers to take chances. There also is a conviction among shipping men that the speed of steamers should be reduced off Newfoundland. In the meantime the French transatlantic line has given orders to the captains of its steamers to take a more southerly course.

Roosevelt Expresses Grief at Disaster

NEW YORK, April 20.—Mayor Gaynor received the following telegram from Colonel Roosevelt, dated Lincoln, Neb.: "I wish I was present in New York to join with my fellow citizens in expressing our grief at the shocking catastrophe to the Titanic and our deep sympathy with the kindred of those who have perished."

LA AMITA

SCRIBES HONOR TITANIC VICTIMS

Pay Tribute to Dead at Banquet Held at Idora Park.

In the midst of the merriment at a banquet tendered newspapermen of the bay region at Idora park last night came the message from the east that six men of the craft had gone down with the Titanic, and had died like men in the great disaster. Laughter was stifled, and on the motion of Raymond L. Boyd, an old newspaperman of the bay region, who is now press representative of Idora park, a silent toast was drunk to the fellow craftsmen of the banqueters.

Edward C. Soules, a well-known reporter from Alameda, representing Oakland and San Francisco papers there, proposed that the newspapermen of the bay region should take up a subscription to aid the families of the men who died in the wreck, or to send some token of condolence to the bereaved families. The motion was put and unanimously adopted, and Soules was appointed a committee of one to obtain the addresses of the newspapermen who were included in the death list, and to make arrangements to carry out the plan. Soules was given full powers to act for the Alameda county newspapermen.

The banquet last night was given by the Idora park management to men connected with the editorial, dramatic and musical departments of the newspapers about the bay. Beiram L. York, manager of the park, presided as toastmaster, and was assisted in receiving the guests of the park by Percy Norwood and Raymond L. Boyd.

The message came at the height of the merrymaking last night when toasts had been drunk to the management, to Manager York, to Norwood, who is soon to leave for the north, to Boyd, who is the new press representative at the park, succeeding Norwood, and to many of the guests.

Suddenly Boyd was called from the gathering to receive a telephone message. On returning to the dining hall he announced the substance of the message he had received from the east. The men about the banquet board rose, and with one accord, drank a silent toast to their dead comrades. The plan was then breached to send messages of condolence and some substantial aid to the bereaved families.

Regrets were read from several San Francisco newspapermen who could not be present. Among the representatives of the following: Bertram L. York, Raymond L. Boyd, Percy Norwood, Charles G. Henry, Adam Hull Shirk, Howard Krueger, Bert F. Hews, Porter Giles, E. C. Soules, Paul Buckley, Joseph Byrd, Edward Allen, Harry L. Sully, William Curtis, Max Stern, James Liddy, L. N. Thompson, Frank Bangs, and Clarence Cane.

GOVERNMENT GETS WORD OF IMPENDING FLIGHT

Senator Smith Hastens From Washington to Intercept Titanic Survivors

NEW YORK, April 20.—Explanation of the trip of Senator William Alden Smith of Michigan, chairman of the senate committee named to investigate the Titanic disaster, to New York Thursday night to begin the inquiry, was made today when it became known that a wireless message sent by J. Bruce Ismay, president of the International Mercantile Marine Company, to Vice-president Franklin of the White Star Line, asking that the Cedric be stopped to take Ismay and the survivors of the Titanic crew on board, was intercepted by a government boat and sent to Washington.

Senator Smith is quoted today as saying he had understood in Washington that such messages had been exchanged.

SEA TRAGEDY IS SERMON THEME

Memorial Services to Be Held in Churches in New York City.

NEW YORK, April 20.—The Titanic disaster will be the theme of sermons in hundreds of churches throughout the United States tomorrow. In New York the principal memorial service will be held in the magnificent new Cathedral of St. John the Divine. Bishop Greer, head of the Episcopal diocese of New York, will officiate.

At old Trinity Church a similar memorial service will be held. Trinity is to be the scene on Tuesday next of an official memorial service under the auspices of the British consul-general and the St. George Society.

The musical programs in most of the New York churches tomorrow will reflect the feeling of sorrow and grief over the greatest marine disaster of history. The hymns "Nearer, My God to Thee" and "Guide Me, O Thou Great Jehovah," played by the Titanic's band just before the boat sank, will have prominent places. Requiem music and such numbers as Gounod's "Messe Solennelle," Chopin's funeral march and Handel's "Dead March" will be heard in many churches.

How thoroughly the day's sermons will be devoted to the Titanic may be judged from scanning subjects announced by the pastors of the ten largest New York churches today. They are as follows: "The Great Catastrophe," "Lessons From the Disaster," "The Cry of Peril," "Heroism of Private Life," "Reflections on the Loss of the Titanic," "Lost," "God's Voice in the Disaster," "Sympathy," "The Modern Mind in the Presence of a Great Calamity" and "The Sorrow of the Sea."

A prudent mother is always on the watch for symptoms of worms in her children. Pale faces, lack of interest in play, and peevishness is the signal for WHITE'S CREAM VERMIFUGE. A few doses of this excellent remedy puts an end to the worms and the child soon acts naturally. Price 25c per bottle. Sold by Wishart's drug store, 1001 Washington street.

out, while Burr became entangled near the exhaust and besides receiving a broken collar bone was severely burned about the body.

Occupants at the Junction house and several farmers en route to market went to the aid of the party, succeeded in lifting the heavy car and hastily summoned Dr. A. H. McFarlane of Mountain View.

The physician sped to the scene in his automobile and immediately discovered that Jones was dead.

WOMAN HURT.

A quick examination revealed the fact that one of the women had received a wrenched back and was probably injured internally, while the other two were bleeding freely from a multitude of wounds on the face and scalp.

Dr. McFarlane placed them in his car and rushed them to the Peninsula hospital in Palo Alto, nearly eight miles distant. The women refused to register, steadfastly declining to reveal their identity.

"I think Burr will recover," said Dr. McFarlane, "but I cannot say positively. The women were rather young, but they would not give their names. I think none of them will suffer permanent injury."

Jones resided in Berkeley, and Burr lives at 1251 Eighth avenue in the Sunset district. He has a wife and one child. Both of the men in the party have long been prominent among the commission merchants of this city.

Portland Churches to Hold Services

PORTLAND, Ore., April 20.—In response to the request of Mayor A. G. Rushlight that today be set apart as a day of mourning for the Titanic, flags throughout this city were half-masted today, where they will remain over Sunday, when nearly every church in the city will hold memorial services.

BELIEVE M'GUIRE DIED ON TITANIC

Graduate of University of California Was First-class Passenger.

BERKELEY, April 20.—James E. McGuire, graduate of the University of the University of California with the class of 1898, underground manager of the famous Simmer deep mine of South Africa, and a not a baseball player, is believed to have gone down with the Titanic, according to advices received by his former Berkeley friends. McGuire will make the second Berkeley graduate to have lost his life in the wreck, Walter M. Clark, a member of the 1901 class, having gone down after placing his young wife in a lifeboat.

J. E. McGuire was listed as a first-class passenger on the Titanic and is believed to have been returning to his former home in Grass Valley on a visit after several years spent in South Africa. On the survivors' list there is no name of McGuire, which leads his friends to believe he was drowned. McGuire was regarded as one of the most brilliant students in the engineering colleges. He also was a star ball player, and after taking up the mining work in South Africa, organized a mine which won the championship of the college of mining, a former instructor and a thoroughly on gold mining. He was highly regarded by the Consolidated Goldfields Company, one of the Cecil Rhodes organizations, for whom he worked. Professor S. B. Christy, dean of the college of mining, a former instructor and a warm friend of McGuire, in speaking of his reported death, said yesterday:

RECEIVED HIGH HONORS.

"James E. McGuire was one of the most brilliant students in civil engineering ever attending the University of California. The news that he went down with the wreck of the Titanic has caused sincere regret on the campus. He did such splendid work here that he was awarded a two years' fellowship in 1898 and was graduated with high honors in 1898. The last address we had for him at the university was Duymeyn, South Africa. He came from Grass Valley.

"In my opinion, the sinking of the Titanic and the partial loss of life is a disgrace to civilization, a shame that rests upon the entire civilized world. An accident of that kind should never have happened. It was absolutely preventable in the present age of scientific progress and only criminal negligence and supreme carelessness for human life caused it. The United States government should demand not only a right investigation, but should see, even if it is necessary to call upon the navy, that proper precautionary measures are adopted by all transatlantic lines.

"Science has evolved two methods of preventing such a tragedy. One is the use of the delicate thermostat, an electrical thermometer that measures change in temperature of water or air to the hundredth of a degree. This instrument would have told of the nearness of the submerged portion of the iceberg long before the vessel was within the danger zone. The other is the wonderful sea telephone of Professor Gray, which would give the voice of a bell heard through the water from a point ten miles away. The sound vibration of the propeller blades thrown back from the ice walls a mile away would have been echoed in this delicate mechanism and have warned the operator, sitting in a cabin with the receiver of this sea telephone attached to his ears, that there was either land or ice a short distance away.

"If, as stated in the dispatches, the Titanic was equipped with this device the operator must have been sleeping or not sufficiently observant. The government should equip several ships of the navy with all possible devices to insure safety at sea and give warning of the approach of ice, land or other vessels and should make a thorough test. Then a proper equipment should be decided upon and every ocean-going steamship equipped in that manner. Then a repetition of the Titanic tragedy would be impossible."

PAYS HIGH TRIBUTE TO TITANIC HEROES

Washington Woman Recounts Bravery of Butt, Astor and Straus.

NEW YORK, April 20.—"The action of the men on the Titanic was noble," declares Mrs. Churchill Candee of Washington. "They stood back in every instance that I noticed and gave the women and children the first chance to get away safely."

"Particularly heroic was the conduct of Isidor Straus, Major Archibald Butt, John Jacob Astor and Henry B. Harris. They formed a group of the passengers who on the stern of the Titanic, for the lack was forward, and it was known that if she sank it would be bow first.

"An officer of the Titanic ordered Mrs. Straus into a boat. She said: 'I will not leave my husband. We've been together all these years and I'll not leave him now.'

"It brought tears to my eyes to witness her great devotion for her husband.

"Mr. Harris insisted that his wife get into a life boat. She refused at first, but was finally forced into the boat.

"As we put away I observed Mrs. Straus waving her handkerchief at us. The Titanic was then settling. Her stern was out of the water and she was going down bow first. There must have been 1400 persons gathered together on the stern.

"I saw Colonel Astor helping get the women and children into the boats. Then he went below, remaining there several minutes. I believe he was searching for more women and children.

"Finally he came back again. He was on deck when the Titanic sank. I believe, for when I last saw him he was still adding in the work of rescue.

"Major Butt was one of God's nobles. I saw him working desperately to get the women and children into boats.

"What need can there be of recounting the heroic deeds performed by those men who remained on the Titanic? To dwell upon them only sickens the heart, with the realization of how they perished."

DISASTER 'FORMAL' SAYS ONE WOMAN

Mrs. J. J. Brown Declares That There Was Nothing Tragic in Wreck.

NEW YORK, April 20.—Mrs. J. J. Brown, wife of a Denver mining capitalist, told to a reporter the story of her seven-hour vigil in an open boat after leaving the Titanic.

"The whole thing," said Mrs. Brown, "was so formal that it was difficult for any one to realize that it was a tragedy. Men and women stood in little groups and talked. Some laughed as the first boats went over the side. All the time the band was playing.

"I had noticed two men following me from place to place as I talked, with the women here and there. These two men just then followed me to the upper deck and carried me down and practically threw me into the boat.

"The man, the one of the boat, a quartermaster they said he was, told us to row away from the big steamer. I was getting cold. I took off my life belt because I knew how cold the water was and felt that if I were to be drowned I wanted it over quickly—they say it takes but two minutes. I did not wish to linger. I figured it all out and then I got an oar. In this way I managed to keep warm.

"To me there was not one tragic harrowing element near me. We were in a boat, we were safe, and we were at work. I was simply fascinated.

HO! FOR SQUASHTOWN, WHERE ELKS REIGN

Large Crowds Attend 'Rube' Festivities in Lodge Rooms

"Squashtown" continues to draw large crowds to the clubrooms of Oakland lodge of Elks, the affair being probably the most successful celebration ever held by the organization. The "rube" makeups, and the different features of the burlesque country town are worked out to perfection, and after the opening Thursday the fun grew fast and furious and has been so ever since.

A visit to Squashtown is one long trip of hilarity. From the time the visitor enters the mayor's office on the first floor, where Harry Anderson, in an Ezra Kendall hat, extends the glad hand of welcome, to the time he leaves, after a visit to the "drug store," he is conducted through a city of mirth.

The lower floor of the lodge quarters is laid out as the main street of Squashtown.

Next to the mayor's office the general merchandise store does a thriving business. Goods of all descriptions were on display and sale here. This store was in charge of Fred Hooper, assisted by a large corps of able salesmen. Then comes the barber shop, which is furnished in the most primitive fashion, but which is presided over by a first-class barber. The cigar stand was taken care of by Mr. and Mrs. Fred Anderson. Next to this is the drug store, which was in charge of James M. Shanley and Robert J. Sheridan.

The Oakland Chamber of Commerce has also sent a display, which strongly contrasts with the "josh" exhibits of the other department.

The full list of Squashtown officials and committees is as follows:

Ladies' Household Emporium—Mrs. G. W. Blithen chairman, Misses Ruth Hart, Hazel Perkins, Mrs. C. L. Hart.

Launch Parlors—Mrs. Perry L. Johnson chairman, Mrs. S. B. Newcomb, Mrs. O. F. Whitney, Mrs. O. D. Whitney, Mrs. D. R. Sinclair, Mrs. Max Horvinski, Mrs. A. Currier, Mrs. Dr. Crawford, Mrs. A. Wetmore, Mrs. P. Sonderleiter, Misses Johnson, Edress, Schaefer, Lott, Elsa and Mabel Schwin.

Freighter Comes in Under Tow

The Bates & Chenebrough freighter MacKinaw, Captain Alwen, which arrived here recently from Balboa was brought in under tow of Redstock tug yesterday afternoon and tied up a berth alongside the United Engineering Works yard.

The steamer was put on the ways this morning for cleaning and painting. At the conclusion of her repairs the freighter will sail for Portland.

Reporting a rough and unpleasant run the Olsen Mahony lumber carrier Jim Butler, Captain Olsen arrived here this morning from San Pedro and tied up at berth 6, Long wharf. The Butler, which usually makes the run from the south in twenty-four hours, was something over seventy-four hours in making the passage, a stiff north-west wind backing the vessel during the entire run.

The ship William P. Frye, Captain Nickerson, arrived here this morning from Nantuxet and tied up at the Western Fuel Company's bunkers, where she is discharging a 2,500 ton cargo of coal.

The steam schooner Arctic, Captain Lander, from Port Briggs, and Pasadena, Captain McGovern, from Coos Bay are at Long wharf. Arctic is picking up a 400 ton cargo of rails and the Pasadena is discharging 25,000 feet of lumber.

Plant Oak in Lakeside Park

Following the custom which was prescribed several years ago, the Native Sons and Daughters of the Golden West of Piedmont Parlor, No. 87, planted an oak tree in Lakeside Park yesterday afternoon. The ceremony was opened with a brief address delivered by Mrs. Alice Miner, chairman of the day. The remarks were followed by the placing of the tree in the ground by George Grimm of the park staff. Mrs. Addie Mosher, past president of Piedmont Parlor, gave the invocation.

Secretary of the Oakland Chamber of Commerce A. A. Denison was the speaker. Mrs. May B. Wilkins, past grand president of the Native Daughters of the Golden West, paid tribute to the pioneer fathers and mothers by placing a tablet near the tree, with the inscription: "To the memory of the pioneer fathers and mothers by Piedmont Parlor, No. 87, of the Native Daughters of the Golden West."

The program included a recitation called "The Oaks" by Mrs. Minnie Nedderman; poem, "The Pioneers," by Mrs. Jennie Brown, and remarks by Oscar Prager, whose landscape gardens "My Own United States" was sung by Miss Charlotte McMahon. This was followed by the placing of a shovelful of earth about the tree, after which the exercises closed with the singing of "America" by the audience.

Household Remedy

Taken in the Spring for Years.

Ralph Rust, Willis, Mich., writes: "Hood's Sarsaparilla has been a household remedy in our home as long as I can remember. I have taken it in the spring for several years. It has no equal for cleansing the blood and exciting the humors that accumulate during the winter. Being a farmer and exposed to bad weather, my system is often affected, and I often take Hood's Sarsaparilla with good results."

Hood's Sarsaparilla is Peculiar to itself. There is no "just as good." Get it today in usual liquid form or tablets called Sarsatabs.

Fields, Pardoned, Now in Oakland

Ex-Soldier Arrives to Find His Relatives Dead; in Prison for Years.

Bearing a pardon from the President, and assisted across the continent by mayors of the cities in his path, Clarence Fields, a battle-scarred veteran of the Philippines, sentenced to fifty years' imprisonment for the murder of a native, and then liberated after great influence had been brought to bear, arrived today in Oakland, once his home, but now a place that recalls only memories of his family, every member of which died while Fields was serving seven and a half years in federal prisons.

Fields fought in the front rank of Company F, Fifteenth Infantry, when that unit was almost annihilated in 1900 on the island of Samar by savage bolo men, who ambushed the troop. In this engagement Fields was terribly mutilated, and left for dead on the field of action. He recovered, and was assigned to sentry duty, while waiting for a disability discharge that would entitle him to $72 per month and admission to the Soldiers Home at Washington, D. C.

One day two natives started a fight, close to Fields, and one of them tried to take the soldier's gun away to use on his opponent. Fields clubbed the man to death, was convicted of murder, and sentenced to fifty years, being transferred from various prisons to Governor's Island, New York.

General Arthur McArthur, Congressman E. A. Hayes, Congressman Joseph R. Knowland and Fields' captain, Willis Ulina, interested themselves in the case, the latter testifying before Congress that the soldier's gun was in the hands of the enemy. At the inquiry it was brought out that Fields had been in disfavor with General Fred Grant for refusing to divulge to the commanding officer the names of subordinates who were sent to a drunken carousal. Fields claimed he did not know.

The ex-soldier is seeking reinstatement so as to obtain pension and admission to the Soldiers Home. His own home is with the well-known Fitzgerald family, near San Pablo township.

LIFEBOATS HALF FULL ASSERTS DOCTOR DODGE

San Franciscan Writes Striking Account of Last Minutes of Vessel

NEW YORK, April 20.—Washington Doctor Dodge, who had a thrilling story to tell of the last minutes of the Titanic, rested quietly at the Hotel Wolcott yesterday. Dr. and Mrs. Dodge received a number of friends, and telegrams of congratulation were sent to their apartments all day. Many stories of the catastrophe have been told, but the following by Dr. Dodge, is the first cool, collected recital of what happened before and after the Titanic went to its ocean grave.

By DR. WASHINGTON DODGE.

At 10 p. m. Sunday while my wife and I went out for a stroll along the city promenade, we were struck by a cold, in fact, that we were driven inside although we had on heavy wraps. This change of temperature had occurred in the previous two hours. We went to bed and were awakened about 11:40 by a jar which gave me the impression that a blow on the side had moved the entire vessel laterally to a considerable angle. With only my overcoat and slippers, I went through the companion way, but, to my surprise, found no one seriously considering the shock.

Men in evening clothes stood about chatting and laughing, and when an officer—I do not know his name—hurried by I asked, "What is the trouble?" He replied:

"Something is wrong with the propeller; nothing serious."

I went back to my stateroom, where my wife had already arisen to dress herself and I dissuaded her from dressing herself and our 4-year-old son. A little while later, still feeling nervous, I went up to the promenade deck and there saw a great mass of ice close to the starboard rail. Going back to my cabin again, I met my bedroom steward, with whom I shared the cabin, and he whispered to me that "Word has come from below for every one to put on life preservers."

I rushed back to my stateroom and told my wife the news and made her come up on deck with the baby, even though she was then suspended from the davits, but no passengers wanted to get in.

All this while later, when I saw that there was plenty of room, I asked the officer at the rail, whose name I do not know, why I also could not get in, as there was plenty of room. His only reply was, "Women and children first," and the half-filled boat sheered on.

Before the next boats were lowered passengers who had become excited were calmed by the utterances of the officers that the injury was trivial and that in case it proved serious at least four steamships had been summoned by wireless and would be on hand within an hour.

I watched the lowering of the boat in which my wife and child were until it was safely launched on an even keel, and then I went to the starboard side of the ship, where the boats with the odd numbers from 1 to 15, were being prepared for dropping over the side.

The thing that impressed me was that there was not sufficient men to launch the boats, and, as a matter of fact, when the ship went down there was still one boat on the davits and one on the deck. This peculiar part of the whole rescue was that the first boats had no more than 20 passengers with four seamen to row, while the later boats averaged from 40 to 60, with hardly one person aboard who knew how to move an oar.

At this time the Titanic had a slight list to port, but just after the collision Captain Smith, coming hurriedly up and musing what the list was and finding it 18 degrees to starboard, said: "My God!"

BAILOFF OFFERS STOKINGS.

As there is always a touch of humor in the most gruesome of happenings, it is told by Mrs. Dodge that one of the sailors in the boat in which she embarked insisted on taking off his shoes and giving her his stockings, saying: "I assure you, ma, that they are perfectly clean. I just put them on this morning."

I waited until what I thought was the

BOLD THIEF RIDES OFF WITH AUTO

SAN FRANCISCO, April 20.—A bold thief jumped into an automobile in front of the Fairmont hotel at 1 o'clock this morning and drove off while several chauffeurs and policemen vainly looked on. It was not until ten minutes later that the discovery was made that the car belonged to W. A. Ferrel of 886 Steiner street.

Lumber Schooner IS LOST ON REEF

PAGEET, Tenn., April 20.—The schooner S. W. Watson, Captain Endre sen, of San Francisco, is on the inner reef of Rataira Island, probably a total loss. The vessel sailed in January from Port Raymond, Wash., with lumber for Tahiti, and was forced to jettison part of her deckload in heavy weather, reaching Pageet Bay battered on March 17. Ten days later, while sailing to Rataira to complete discharging, the wind failed, and the schooner was driven ashore and was carried onto the inside reef by a strong current.

SEEK NEWS OF THE CREW. SOUTHAMPTON (England), April 20.—The wives and relatives and friends of the crew of the Titanic gathered yesterday at the White Star offices to wait for the list of officers and men saved. In some cases the potting of the list brought relief, but the majority went away with their worst fears confirmed.

BERKELEY GIRL IS REPORTED MISSING

BERKELEY, April 20.—Miss Margaret Campbell, a pretty eighteen-year-old girl, has disappeared from the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. James Campbell, of 2314 California street, and they are anxiously making a search for her. The girl has been missing since Monday, leaving her home at a place where she declared she had found, and not returning. On previous occasions the girl has been difficult to locate, and she has been in the juvenile court and the district attorney's office at one time investigating charges she brought against an Oakland man.

PLENTY OF ROOM IN BOAT.

It was a drop of 50 feet to the surface of the sea, and, apparently, everybody considered that they were safer on the "unsinkable Titanic" than in a small boat whose propelling power was four oars. The first boat was only half filled for the simple reason that no one would get aboard.

Personally, I waited for the lifeboat to become filled, and when I saw that there was plenty of room, I asked the officer at the rail, whose name I do not know, why I also could not get in, as there was plenty of room. His only reply was, "Women and children first," and the half-filled boat sheered on.

Before the next boats were lowered passengers who had become excited were calmed by the utterances of the officers that the injury was trivial and that in case it proved serious at least four steamships had been summoned by wireless and would be on hand within an hour.

When the steersman passengers came up many of them had knives, revolvers and clubs and sought to fight their way to the two unlaunched, collapsible boats. Many of these were shot by the officers. Only one of the collapsible boats, and even that did not float above the water's edge. From 40 to 50 persons who had jumped overboard clambered aboard it and stood upon it, locked arm and arm together until it was submerged to a depth of at least 10 inches. They all tried to hold together, but when the Carpathia's boat reached them there were only 16 left.

This most horrible part of the story is the statement that several persons in the lifeboats saw, when the Titanic took her final plunge, that her four great smokestacks sucked up and carried down in their giant maws dozens of the third class passengers, then huddled together on the forward upper deck.

FOR YOUR HAIR

Here Are Facts We Want You to Prove at Our Risk.

Marvelous as it may seem, Rexall "93" Hair Tonic has grown hair on heads that were once bald. Of course, it is understood that in none of these cases were the hair roots dead nor had the scalp taken on a glazed, shiny appearance.

When the roots of the hair are entirely dead and the pores of the scalp glazed over, we do not believe that anything can restore their growth.

When Rexall "93" Hair Tonic will do as above stated, it is not strange that we have such great faith in it, and that we claim it will prevent baldness when used in time. It acts scientifically, does not irritate the scalp, and is usually responsible for baldness. It penetrates to the roots of the hair, stimulating and nourishing them. It is a most pleasant toilet necessity, is delicately perfumed and will not run nor permanently stain the hair.

We want you to get a bottle of Rexall "93" Hair Tonic and use it as directed. If it does not relieve scalp irritation, remove dandruff, prevent the hair from falling out and promote an increased growth of hair and in every way give entire satisfaction, simply come back and tell us without question or formality we will refund back to you every penny you paid us for it.

We lend our endorsement to Rexall "93" Hair Tonic and sell it on this guarantee, because we believe it is the best hair tonic ever discovered. It comes in two sizes, prices 50 cents and $1.00. Remember, you can obtain it only at the Orl Drug Co. stores in Oakland, San Francisco, Los Angeles, Sacramento, Portland, Seattle, Spokane.

IMMIGRATION BILL PASSES SENATE

Every Male Foreigner Must Read and Write Before Entering U. S.

WASHINGTON, April 20.—The Dillingham immigration bill, with the education test restored in modified form, passed the Senate yesterday without division of the final vote. The test adopted requires that every male immigrant must read and write, and makes that provision applicable to immigrants from Canada and other countries of the western hemisphere who were exempted by the original bill. Religious refugees would be exempted.

Senator Root's amendment to provide for the deportation of aliens conspiring to overthrow other governments was passed. This was said to be intended to apply especially to anti-Mexican agitators.

The Chinese exclusion law is incorporated in the general bill. The immigrant head tax is increased from $4 to $5. Refunds in the immigration service are provided.

COURT TO RULE MONDAY ON INJUNCTION PETITION

Architects of City Give Their Side of Dispute Over School Plans

When the matter of hearing the injunction proceedings sought by James Pedgriff against the city of Oakland was continued this morning before Superior Judge J. D. Murphy, Assistant City Attorney Charles A. Beardsley asked that the temporary injunction be modified. The request was not granted, the court pointing out that the same would not have any effect over Sunday and that the proceedings could probably be ended on Monday.

Attorney Charles Snook continued his argument from the standpoint of the city, but did not finish and the matter was continued until 9 o'clock Monday morning.

The hearing, which commenced yesterday afternoon, is the outcome of a temporary injunction issued by Judge Murphy restraining the city council and the board of education from approving the plans submitted to them by Supervising Architect J. J. Donovan.

The matter of the alleged bribe of $8000, said to have been offered Commissioner Harry S. Anderson, has not been placed in the hands of the district attorney. Anderson declared today that so far as he was concerned there was nothing to the incident, as it had occurred several months ago and that for his part the matter was concluded.

The following communications have been received by THE TRIBUNE:

Oakland, Cal. April 20, 1912.

EDITOR TRIBUNE: I noted in last night's issue of your paper that Mr. Harry Anderson, commissioner of public works, accuses me of violating his confidence and repeating a statement he had made at an executive session of the home industry committee.

The session referred to was attended by several press reporters with Anderson's full knowledge and consent, and full accounts of what took place were published in the papers the following afternoon.

Since Mr. Anderson has seen fit to make this unjust accusation, I would like to ask him why he did not perform his solemn duty as a sworn officer of the city and arrest the man who he states paid $8000 in paper money on his table as a bribe? I would also like to ask him why he continues to protect the bribe-giver by refusing to divulge his name? And this is not all; he also stated that another architect had offered to give him $10,000 if he would give him a job. Why does he protect this man by refusing to give his name?

Mr. Anderson has gone too far to retreat and the architects of Oakland demand that he expose the corruption and present them to the public. His silence at this time casts a doubt upon the integrity of every architect in Oakland and San Francisco.

A man has no right to make such statements unless he can back them up on a public servant has no right to protect a bribe-giver. Yours truly, C. W. DICKKEY.

EDITOR TRIBUNE: In view of the fact that certain interests have persistently endeavored to make it appear that the efforts which are being put forth to secure local materials, contractors, architects and mechanics the benefits of the bond money to be paid by the people of Oakland, is a controversy between architects, it is proper that a public statement be made with regard to the situation.

This situation was just canvassed by the dealers and contractors association, which is a committee of representatives of the following organizations, embracing approximately 500 members and several thousand clients: Lime, Brick and Cement Association, General Contractors' Association, Electrical Association, Class Association, Plasterers' Association, Sheet Metal Association, Roofing Association, Sash and Door Association, Joiners' Association, Hardware Association, Master Painters' Association, Master Plumbers' Association, Mill Owners' Association, Paint and Oil Association, Structural Steel and Iron Association, Brick Contractors' Association.

It is the policy of the Chamber of Commerce, through its manufacturers' committee, in working for the building up of the city, to secure the employment of local labor and material, the matter was taken up with that committee and a unanimous request of the directors of the Chamber of Commerce with representatives of the Dealers and Contractors' Association.

This was called by President Gibson of the Chamber of Commerce on the evening of April 5 and at this meeting in order that the committee might be represented in presenting a protest to the city council, there was added to the committee delegates from the Chamber of Commerce and the Progress and Prosperity Committee and the Manufacturers' Committee of the Chamber of Commerce and Mr. C. W. Dickey, of the Oakland Architectural Association. The fact that the latter being first named was designated as chairman of the committee has been made the occasion of the claim that this campaign is a controversy between architects for the purpose of obscuring the real issue, that of the recognition and encouragement of home enterprise and the carrying out of the solemn and signed pledge made when the school and auditorium bond issue was pending.

J. S. PEDGRIFF, Chairman Home Industry Committee, for the Committee.

RESOLUTIONS PLEDGING THE PROGRESS AND PROSPERITY COMMITTEE of the Chamber of Commerce to support the fight now being waged on the part of the Chamber of Commerce and allied organizations in the Dealers and Contractors' Association to secure the fulfillment of the pledge signed May 13, 1911, to employ local architects, builders and material men in the construction of the new school buildings were passed by the committee last night.

The following in the resolution, endorsed unanimously:

"Resolved, That it is the sense of this organization that with the same vigor and earnestness with which we fought for the bonds for schools and auditorium, with the same vigor we will fight for the fulfillment of the pledge signed by our chairman on May 13, 1911, calling for local architects, material and labor when same could be secured, according to the provisions of the charter."

The action of the committee followed the appearance of a delegation from the Dealers and Contractors' Association and the Home Industry Committee, headed by C. W. Dickey, James H. Pedgriff and Fred Soderstrom, before the committee. The representatives of the architects and contractors reported on the fight, which has been carried on over the awarding of contracts to outside architects, and addresses were made by various members of the delegation.

The Progress and Prosperity body was also asked to endorse a resolution calling for the abolition of the city ordinance creating the office of supervising architect. This action was referred to the executive committee of the central committee for report at the next meeting.

Among those who discussed the controversy were John W. Phillips of the Manufacturers' committee, Charles F. Gorman, former chairman of the Progress and Prosperity Committee, Dr. G. B. N. Clow, and others.

STOLE SAME COAT TWICE, IS CHARGE

Peculiar Crime Unearthed by Oakland Police; Man Jailed.

The extraordinary feat of stealing the same overcoat twice and pawning the garment twice, is said to have been performed by Oscar Hoffman, an accused petty larcenist, captured by the Oakland police last night and charged with the theft of a score of overcoats. The overcoat is the property of L. C. Abercrombie, of 729 Twenty-sixth street, and was stolen and recovered and stolen again by the same thief within a period of five days.

Hoffman was captured by Patrolman Phillips and Inspectors James Drew and William Quigley. The man, who is the police, confessed the theft of seven overcoats stolen from automobiles in Oakland, and of about the same number stolen from the same San Francisco. Hoffman was released from Martinez jail April 10 after serving six months on a larceny charge, and within two days recommenced a career of crime in Oakland. The overcoats taken were stolen between April 10 and Hoffman's arrest last night.

Abercrombie's overcoat was stolen from his automobile April 12, while the machine was standing in front of a local cafe. It was recovered from a local pawn shop two days later, and Abercrombie declared that he would keep careful watch that the garment should not be taken again. Last Wednesday evening he was called from his automobile to the telephone while in front of his office in Broadway, and the five minutes he was away, Hoffman, it is charged, again stole the coat, and pawned it a few hours later in a local loan office.

Hoffman will probably be charged with petty larceny and a prior conviction, which will make it a felony. One of a score of overcoats recovered, the police have located the owners of only four, and they are making an effort to find who owns the other three coats, all of which were stolen in Oakland from automobiles. The owners of the recovered garments were P. H. Crilly, 607 Winton avenue; C. C. Reis, 2251 College avenue; P. D. Lane, First National bank; and L. C. Abercrombie, 729 Twenty-sixth street.

MRS. DE VINE BEGINS TERM AT SAN QUENTIN

Harriet Lorraine Fraser De Vine commenced serving her ten-year term in San Quentin yesterday for the offense of forging a will of the late Mary L. Swaine. She was taken to the prison at 9 o'clock by Marion White and Deputy Sheriff Arthur Lison. Robert De Vine, husband of the prisoner, did not accompany her, and did not visit her at the jail prior to the departure.

SEEK CONVENTION OF ESPERANTISTS

Local Enthusiasts Ask Congressman Knowland to Use Influence.

The following petition, signed by a number of prominent people of Oakland, Berkeley, Alameda and San Francisco has just been sent to Congressman J. R. Knowland at Washington, D. C. In the hope of being able to secure for Oakland the International Convention of Esperantists to be held in 1915.

"Hon. Joseph R. Knowland, House of Representatives, Washington, D. C. Dear Sir:—We, the undersigned, very much desire that you will do all in your power to aid and vote on any favorable report on the universal international auxiliary language Esperanto, especially as we wish to have the eleventh annual congress of Esperantists in San Francisco next August in 1915."

While little is known among the general public of the progress which has been made in Esperanto during the past few years, it is nevertheless a fact that the language is rapidly becoming one of the most important professional and business media in Oakland and the Bay Cities.

Esperanto is fast gaining a stronghold in educational institutions in American and Europe. In some of the continental countries Esperanto is a compulsory subject of the child's public education, and innumerable instances are quoted of the use of Esperanto in securing intelligent recognition by public officials in the European countries of claims made by foreigners in matters of international importance.

A branch of the National Esperanto association which has just been formed in Oakland, has headquarters in this city, and information on the subject will be gladly forwarded to any inquiries who may be interested and will address the association in care of general delivery enclosing postage for reply.

'MOTHER NAGGED ME,' DECLARES RUNAWAY BOY

There were a number of young offenders taken before Judge Frank Ogden and Probation Officer Ole Snodgrass in the juvenile court yesterday afternoon. Cases of parents and guardians to be reconciled, wayward youngsters subdued, lazy boys placed, where they will be made to cultivate usefulness and ambition, and all forms of 'embryo' criminality were dealt with in a manner that will be advantageous to the community at large. Dennis G. Donohue looked after a case well at the bottom and upliftment of the young offenders.

One case was particularly interesting as a study. Judge Ogden, as well as Probation Officer Snodgrass, had to consider considerable diplomatic skill about the desired result. It was the problem of young Gorman Garrett, the 17-year-old boy, who had left home and struck out for himself. His mother, Mrs. Garrett, had been divorced from the father, who had refused to work and support her and two boys after she had crossed the continent from the East to join him. After struggles and suffering from poverty the boy had been able to make something toward the mother's support, but according to her story, he had left home through the interference of neighbors, and had refused to return.

It was shown to the court that the boy was employed by a large corporation and was industrious and intelligent. He said he left home because of his mother's constant nagging—when he was at the table he did not eat right, and if he was walking he did not walk right. Then he was told that he was just like his father, which nettled him beyond measure, he said.

The judge reminded the boy that he could not expect even to gain much headway in this world if he refused to do his duty by the woman who had nursed and cared for him. The lad looked at the mother and gave a big swallow. Then he was given his preference, and he decided to go home, but expressed his fears that he would get the same tongue lashing he had received before. The mother was all smiles and thanked the judge for his decision, and said she had said he would not do as she wanted him to do. The happy compromise was made in the court, advising the mother to desist in sending her boy suggestions that he was doing wrong, but instead send him doing right, and that the young man allow the mother to be captain and he could be first mate. After a kindly farewell from the probation officer the couple left the court room.

Another offender was young Silva Fernandez who had been alleged to have stolen $3 from the school. In spite of the evidence Fernandez denied many statements. There were conflicting stories from some of the witnesses, but the $3 was found on the lad. He said he had raised it and his employer had paid him. He accounted for his presence in the school yard by copy admitting to the court that he had been looking through a knot hole to see a girl at the school he had evidently admired.

Unmoved by his position until he was asked why he had not told the truth, the boy seemed to face the consequences without fear. When he was committed to the Boys' and Girls' Aid Society he realized what had befallen him. All of a sudden, and his two flats were up to his eyes, and such flats, they were all eyes. The boy was told by the officer to place his hands upon a table, and instead of a thumb he had five fingers the same length. Where the thumb should be was a long three-jointed member, the same length of the other fingers.

A lengthy dispute, which had been before the police court and brought up again before the juvenile court, was disposed of. Manuel Martin appeared in court much benighted about the head, claiming that young William Flint had hit him on the head with the butt of a whip and caused one laceration while J. Adams had hit him on the head with an iron bar.

There was some argument as to how Martin got into the hall of the house occupied by the Adams family. When questioned as to how he got into the house, after the encounter which which they had rented to J. Adams, and the Martins tried to prevent Adams removing his furniture because he owed rent. The usual civil method was not adopted by Martin, and the consequence was a little mix-up with Adams which the barbed head as a result.

It was asked if he had fallen from the ground up the steps into the house. Mrs. Martin took the stand and dramatically told the court how she had tried to save her man from further injury, and gave a gay description of her husband, who was on top of Adams, as it appeared, and told how young Flint hit her man over the head with the whip snapped like firecrackers. She said she had become interested in the fight owing to the fact that Mrs. Adams had made funny faces at her over the back fence, and she was not to be funny faced with imperiousness on the education of the court.

The case was dismissed on the grounds that Martin had no legal right on the premises, and his lack of knowledge of the law was considered, and young Flint was advised by the court not to kick a man when he is down, and he was told to go home and sin no more.

No More Overhead Wires.

The Great Western Power Company is erecting poles along Webster street to bring highly-charged electric wires into the heart of the city. Already wires are strung on both sides of the street, and the addition adds to the dangers and unsightliness of the thoroughfare. This looks like retrogression. Instead of putting up more overhead wires, steps should be taken to put those already in existence under ground. Wires carrying a high voltage are a menace to public safety, and the authorities should not allow them to be strung overhead, especially on wooden poles.

This is not said by way of criticism of the Great Western Power Company, which is erecting its poles under authority conferred by franchise, but is expressive of the policy which should be pursued in future. When the Great Western Power Company applied for a franchise there was a popular desire for competition in supplying electric current for lighting and power purposes, and it was deemed unfair to compel the new company to put its wires underground when its old established competitor strung overhead.

It was thought only fair to place the two companies on as nearly an even footing as was possible.

Nevertheless it is possible to carry the principle of fairplay to an extreme which circumstances do not justify. In this case it has been carried beyond reasonable limits and to the detriment of the general public. The city suffers in appearance from the new poles and the stringing of additional high-power wires increases the danger of fire and personal accident. No other concern should be granted permission to string overhead wires.

Of course, exception must be made in the cases of telephone and trolley wires. It should be the settled policy of the city to get all other wires underground at the earliest practicable moment. If every company desiring to bring electric current into Oakland be permitted to string wires overhead the wires will never go underground. The competing companies will never agree to put them underground, and if permitted will invoke the principle of fairplay till the crack of doom to keep their wires overhead. The thing to do is to close the door against future attempts to play one company against the other in efforts to gain a privilege that cannot be extended without injury to the public.

One would think the Titanic disaster would be an encouragement to travelers to see America first before crossing the Atlantic, but apparently the awful calamity has not perceptibly diminished the desire of the average American to cross "Paddy's Pond" for an outing. The steamship offices in New York are reported as crowded with persons seeking to book passage. The fast ships which go by the "quick passage"—the northern route—are preferred. "What fools these mortals be."

Chester H. Rowell declines to debate with Colonel Walter L. Houser, La Follette's campaign manager, the desertion of La Follette by the Johnson forces, and with good reason. He says it is a side issue. So it is, in a sense, but it so closely touches the truth, good faith and virtuous professions of the leaders of the State machine, that it is not surprising Rowell should shrink from the ordeal of being shown up on the stump. The Fresno editor has a thick hide and a deal of hardihood, but he cannot stand everything—least of all, being shown up in his true colors.

It appears that the southerly route across the Atlantic is only 113 miles longer than the dangerous so-called short passage—which is likely to be beset with icebergs at this season of the year. It would have taken the Titanic about five hours longer to cross the ocean by this route than the one she took. It was to save this fraction of a day in making the voyage that the magnificent new ship and some 1500 passengers were subjected to an unnecessary peril.

Pettifogging on the Home Rule Bill.

Arthur James Balfour, the last Conservative premier, and Bonar Law, who succeeded him as the leader of the Conservative opposition in the House of Commons, picked the Irish Home Rule bill to pieces in their speeches while the measure was under debate. They found innumerable faults in it. Mr. Balfour, in particular, professed to be painfully disappointed in the bill. It was altogether a bungling piece of statesmanship, in his opinion, being so loosely drawn and so crudely conceived that it would fail of its object and throw Ireland into still greater distress and confusion.

One is justified in doubting Mr. Balfour's sincerity when he regretted that the home rule government provided for in the government bill would prove a failure. Nothing would please Mr. Balfour more than to have it prove a failure. He would oppose any kind of a home rule bill. He picked flaws in the bill because he is opposed to giving Ireland home rule on any terms. He has been fighting home rule ever since he entered Parliament. This is the third home rule bill presented in the Commons since he became a member of that body, and he antagonized them all with every resource at his command. He found fault with the details of them all, but his real objection ran to their purpose.

Mr. Law followed Mr. Balfour's lead in attacking the details of the Asquith plan, but he presently abandoned technical objections for a very different ground of opposition. He explained that Ireland should not be granted home rule because one-fourth the population is Protestant, while the other three-fourths are Catholics, and the three-fourths will outvote the one-fourth. His speech conveyed the inference that if the situation were reversed and the Protestants were in the majority the home rule scheme would be all right. His idea apparently is that the Catholic majority should be kept under the subjection of the Protestant minority.

That is the traditional English view. It also discloses the old habit the British Tories have of looking upon Ireland as a conquered state and the Protestant inhabitants of Ulster as being part and parcel of the conquerors and the other inhabitants of the island as the conquered. So Mr. Law would allow no voice in the government to the subject race. His mind harks back to the delightful period when Catholics were taxed to support the Protestant clergy and it was a capital offense for a priest to say mass. All his consideration is bestowed on the Orangemen of Ulster, with whom politics is mainly prejudice and religion principally prejudice.

Happily the world is moving, and as mankind progresses the influences of bigotry and prejudice declines as directing factors in the policy of nations. In Ireland these malign factors have been fed and supported by an alien landlord class, which is at last being dispossessed under the Land Purchase Act and the soil restored to the ancient inhabitants, who will henceforth be free to till their own farms and governing their own country.

NOT IN THE RING

—ST. LOUIS POST-DISPATCH.

Human Folly Is Not an Act of God.

That ancient excuse for the greed, carelessness and blind folly of man, the act of God, is trotted out to explain the loss of the Titanic. J. Bruce Ismay, managing director of the White Star Company, offers no other explanation. It was an act of God, he says. Of course God caused the ship to be sent over the northern passage, in the track of the icebergs. God was to blame for the shortage in lifeboats and other life-saving appliances. It was God's fault that the ship was driven at such a high rate of speed.

But let us consider. Ismay says the Titanic made 467 miles the first day out from port. The next day she made 516 miles, and the third day, which ended Sunday at noon, she covered 549 miles. That is, she was running within a fraction of twenty-three miles an hour. Her quartermaster says she was going at the rate of twenty-one knots when she struck the iceberg, and Ismay admits that it was the intention to put up to the highest possible rate of speed on Tuesday. The Titanic's engines were built to make eighty revolutions a minute as her extreme speed limit. She was running above seventy-five revolutions twelve hours before the accident occurred.

All this was the act of God, according to Ismay. Why does he not say what is palpably the truth that the ship was being crowded to her speed limit in order to make a quick passage? The ship's officers did this under orders, and those orders must have emanated from Ismay, who is the managing head of the corporation. He said he courted the fullest investigation, but the first thing he did was to place the responsibility for his acts and orders on the Almighty. He fled like a coward from the sinking ship, and now tries to excuse his own moral liability by saying it was the act of God.

The English are a great seafaring race, and British naval annals are studded with deeds of heroism and self-sacrifice. But J. Bruce Ismay is at the other extreme, as if nature seemed determined to show how poor and base a thing a brave and manly race can produce when she aborts.

Notwithstanding the devastating floods in the Mississippi valley, which have occasioned heavy loss and interrupted railway traffic, the bank clearings for the current week show that the business of the country is in a healthy condition. The volume of business transacted in all the commercial centers is considerably larger than the amount transacted during the same period last year, which is very encouraging in view of the fact that business is usually depressed in a Presidential year. Oakland shows up well in the footings, the clearings for this city showing an increase of 20.4 per cent over last year, the highest rate of increase shown by any California city with the exception of Los Angeles.

WHAT IS HUNGER?

Two hundred years ago John Mayow offered an answer to this ever-present problem. "If the stomach be quite empty of food," he wrote, "its internal membranes are, as is probable, pinched by the nitro-aerial particles, and hunger seems to arise from this." It is not surprising that a sensation which is so familiar to every individual from personal experience should have been the subject of numerous and diverse theoretic explanations. A careful analysis will at once bring out the fact that appetite and hunger are fundamentally distinct. Hunger is evidently a demand for nutriment, whereas the pleasures of appetite may be enjoyed without the necessity of an attendant hunger.

In a recent lecture before the Harvey Society of New York City, Professor Cannon of the Harvard Medical School, reviewed the various theories of hunger and offered an explanation of the well-known phenomena. He discarded the widely accepted view that hunger is "a general sensation with local reference." According to this it has been assumed that hunger arises from a general condition of the body, such as the disappearance of food substances from the blood. The sensation of hunger is commonly said to disappear as time passes—which one would certainly not expect if it were a manifestation of a serious deficiency; furthermore, there is no evidence of marked changes in the blood when hunger disappears and it is difficult to reconcile the abrupt onset of the sensation with any equally sudden alteration in the nutritive state of the body. The well-known intermittent occurrence of hunger is not readily explained.

Any tenable theory of hunger must account for its most conspicuous feature, viz., the reference of the feeling to the epigastric region. Hunger is not due to emptiness of the stomach, or to hydrochloric acid secreted into the empty organ, or to congestion of the gastric glands. Cannon attributes it to contractions of the stomach's muscular walls. By an ingenious experiment he was able to register simultaneously the movements of the stomach wall and the subject's impressions of hunger sensation. The contractions and sensation always occurred in unison. But as ascertained when food which satisfies the bodily need is taken into the stomach. The sequence of events may best be described in the author's words: "Hunger is normally the signal that the stomach is contracted for action, the unpleasantness of hunger leads to eating; eating starts gastric secretion, distends the contracted organ, initiates the movements of gastric digestion, and abolishes the sensation."—Journal of the American Medical Association.

For Tomorrow's Special Dessert

"There is one thing about Lehnhardt's desserts that we always enjoy," said an old patron of the store to the writer recently. "And that is the fact that we know they're made as carefully and of as pure ingredients as they would be if made in my own kitchen. Whenever we have friends in to dine we always telephone down and get either a special brick or have a frozen pudding made to order, and during the many years I have traded with Lehnhardt's I have never been disappointed in a delivery or anything but proud of the dessert served."

This is an indorsement that means a great deal to us, because it is proof that our efforts to make good, clean, pure, wholesome desserts is fully appreciated by those who know us best. We could make these same desserts in a very much less expensive manner and probably nine out of ten customers would not know the difference, but such was not the policy of the founder of this establishment and shall never be the policy as long as we remain in business. We want to give you the best to be had and expect you to pay accordingly.

KEG OF SHERRY IS UNLUCKY LOOT

Thieves, Caught in Act, Get Away Once But Are Seen Rolling Barrel.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 20.—A ten-gallon keg of sherry proved the undoing of Albert Graft and Fred McGovern who, despite the fact that they were caught in the act and escaped a pursuer last night, were finally overtaken and arrested by the police. George J. Derrells, a clerk for George Markel of 1201 Golden Gate avenue, noticed the pair rolling the keg west on the street, and followed them. They were giving him battle and had knocked him down when he succeeded in blowing his police whistle. Patrolman O'Neil responded and pursued McGovern, who was finally caught, with the aid of Officer Connelley, several blocks away. Graft was arrested on Fillmore street by Policeman Gorman.

PRIMARY ELECTION DAY NOT GENERAL

SACRAMENTO, April 20.—That May 14 the Presidential preference primary election day, is not a general election day, was decided by the District Court of Appeals in an opinion written by Presiding Justice Chipman, handed down in the case of Guy K. Bickel against the Board of Supervisors of Sonoma county. The appeal before the District Court was taken by the Supervisors from a writ of mandamus directing the Board of Supervisors to set a date for a local option election in that county for some other time than May 14. The Supervisors had set the election for May 14th.

DRAG SLOUGH IN EFFORT TO FIND WARREN'S BODY

THOMAS C. WARREN, well-known clubman, who, it is feared, was drowned near Alviso.—Webster Photo.

Abandoning all hope of Thomas C. Warren being alive, the party of searchers at the Drawbridge, Alviso, today are dragging "Will Goosie" sloop in the hope of recovering the body of the young attorney and clubman who went out in his sailboat Wednesday afternoon for a pleasure cruise and was never seen again.

Late yesterday afternoon the searching party, headed by C. L. Higgins, a brother-in-law, came across the overturned hull of Warren's boat about a mile from where the accident is believed to have occurred. No body was seen.

The tragedy has cast a gloom over the little community of hunters and yachtsmen, for Warren was a popular sportsman as well as a promising attorney. The Nile Club probably will take cognizance of the accident as soon as any possible doubt of their fellow member's fate has been removed.

Mrs. Warren, at the family home in Claremont, is under the care of a physician. The strain of the last few days of suspense has brought about a nervous breakdown.

CHILD LOSES LEG UNDER STREET CAR

Witness to Accident Runs With Girl to the Lane Hospital.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 20.—Margaret Patton, a six-year-old girl living at 2127 Fillmore street, was run over by a car on the hill between Sacramento and California streets, almost in front of her home last night, and was seriously injured. The child stepped from behind a wagon almost directly in front of a car driven by Motorman H. C. Alexander. One of her legs was crushed by the front wheels and she was stunned by her head striking the pavement. R. Serreau, a florist, who witnessed the accident, picked the girl up in his arms and ran a block and a half to Lane Hospital where Dr. Thiel completed the amputation. Alexander was arrested and charged with battery.

ARRESTED FOR TRADE IN STOLEN BICYCLES

Charged with having made a business of stealing bicycles in the cities about the bay, Chester A. Hines was tried and found guilty before Judge George Samuel this morning, the technical charge being that of petty larceny. Hines is said to have induced Louis C. Downey, a minor, to steal the machines, who he later disposed of at night, as Hines paid the boy only a pittance for the stolen property. Downey has been certified to the juvenile court.

Hines will be sentenced Monday. The man carried on the traffic in bicycles in a systematic manner. He would take several machines, take them apart and replace wheels or handle bars of one bicycle with those of another, thus eluding detection when he disposed of the stolen goods.

PRIMA DONNA AND ARTIST MARRIED

Rosina McIntosh Well Known Actress, Is Claimed as Bride.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 20.—Miss Rosina McIntosh, formerly prima donna of the "Night Polles of San Francisco" company, and Reginald Hazleton Bassett, artist, musician, Bohemian, thought that they were being secretly married by Superior Judge Thomas F. Graham yesterday. Guarded by Waldemar Young, who subsequently acted as best man, and accompanied by May Rees, bridesmaid, the couple staid into Judge Graham's courtroom at the hall of justice and, in the judge's chambers, the wedding was solemnized. When the newly wedded pair came out they were greeted by a large delegation of waiting newspaper men.

This is Bassett's second installment of wedded bliss. His first wife is now the wife of Herman Whitaker, the author in the artist's life of the city Whitaker. Mrs. Bassett met. Then the Bassetts became divorced. Whitaker obtained a divorce from his wife and Mrs. Bassett became Mrs. Whitaker.

As a result of his marital experience, Bassett became a misogynist, avoided the society of the fair sex, and devoted himself to music. He wrote all the music for "The King Maker," a comic opera, the words for which were written by Waldemar Young. The opera had a brief run at the old Princess theater. The pair are busy on another opera at present.

Miss McIntosh left "The Polles of San Francisco" company at the Savoy to become soloist at the Odeon cafe, where Bassett is playing. Bassett fell in love first with Miss McIntosh's voice, and then surrendered completely, as the ceremony yesterday shows.

Bassett is a member of the Family and Press clubs. He is a Californian. Mrs. Bassett was born in Oregon. She gave her age as 20. Bassett declared that he was 33.

LOSE COURT FIGHT; MAY GET SALARY

Hopes of Eight Former-Police Officers Scattered by Jurist.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 20.—Superior Judge Cabaniss, in a decision this morning, dashed the hopes of eight former police officers when he decided that they were not members of the local force. Shortly after Mayor McCarthy took his office, his appointees on the police commission reinstated eight officers who had been previously dismissed from the department on charges. One of them served seven months, and the others two months, but the auditor refused to pass their salary warrants. They then filed a writ of mandamus, brought suit by mandamus proceedings to compel the auditor to certify their salary demand, but the court today held that they had been illegally appointed.

"I have searched carefully and find that there is but one conclusion as to which to arrive," declared Judge Cabaniss, "and that is that these men have no standing in the police department. It is my belief, however, that they are entitled to remuneration for the services they have rendered and at the same time refuse them the relief sought. I will continue the matter for one week, and it may be that a compromise decision can be rendered whereby they will get their pay, but no precedent will be set. If a private corporation were to refuse to pay their employees in this fashion they would be open to grave censure and salary demand, though these men accepted their appointments in good faith, and are entitled to their salary."

Kelley, as treasurer of the county of Alameda, an appeal to the district court of appeals, the judgment of Judge Wente in sustaining the demurrer of the district attorney, who represented Treasurer Kelley, was reversed and the cause remanded, with instructions to overrule the demurrer with leave to the respondent to answer. The opinion, rendered April 17, was written by Associate Justice Lommon, and was concurred in by Associate Justices Korison and Hall. The amount involved is $12,326, which MacMullan is suing to recover as overpaid taxes. Brewster A. Hayne was the attorney for the appellant.

CLEMENTS TO BE TRIED FOR MURDER

Confessed Slayer of Five Men Held to Answer at Sacramento.

STOCKTON, April 20.—Zollie Clements, confessed murderer of five men, who was shot down in Sacramento after he had attempted to play a sixth, has been held to answer here for the murder of William H. Newman, a cafe owner, who was shot to death at his place of business on the eve of January 15 last.

The confession which Clements made to Rev. J. B. Travis and the Sacramento chief of police has been repudiated. At the preliminary, which occupied the entire day yesterday in Justice A. G. Parker's court, 27 witnesses testified.

The most damaging testimony of the day was given by Howard Carr, an expert gunsmith, who declared that the bullet taken from Newman's body had been shot from Clements' revolver. The prisoner was perceptibly startled by this testimony and lost the smile that had been observed on his face up to this juncture. Carr declared that Clements' gun had a mechanical defect and that every bullet shot from it was marked.

Miss Emilie Barsties, former sweetheart of the defendant, was also a witness. She stated that Clements was at her home on the night of the crime and did not leave until after 12 o'clock. She said that he not only had a revolver at that time, but that she loaded it for him. She testified that he had a black touliver.

NOT anywhere in the world could one find a more perfectly planned nor more picturesque dinner than that given by Mrs. Frank C. Havens at Wildwood on last Saturday evening. That was the opinion offered by one of the most cultured guests at the dinner—a man who had traveled everywhere. It is difficult to determine when Wildwood looks at its best. One thinks it rarely beautiful when the spring sunshine falls all around it, when birds sing in the trees; when one looks out from its windows upon beautiful vista, down a lovely canyon, out upon the lake—the setting of a wonderful picture, typical of a far western land, of a land of romance, of the land of adventure called California.

On the outside there is the romance of the new world; on the inside all the wonderful glamor, all the fine aesthetic atmosphere of the old world, of the Orient, where great artistic dreams have been realized. The picture is perfect, entirely satisfying, and of rare beauty.

Again there is a picture, when Wildwood stands quite by itself, without the charm of its outer environment, and one realizes that here is an Oriental poem; the softly shaded lights, deftly arranged; the coloring that strikes faint tones; a beautiful blending; the wonderful woods from over the seas—the beautiful harmonies that bespeak a restfulness, a reposeful dignity—all strike notes in this poem that are enchanting.

And so it happened that Mrs. Havens' dinner at Wildwood was set in the heart of a wonderful home, and the guests felt themselves part of a pageant; they lent the living color to a house to which the Past had contributed of its rarest treasures, to lend beauty to a scene of today. There is a certain nobility in this home that is impressive. It is full of dignity.

Far off in the heart of India rises a building, stately and majestic—the Laj Mahal—that shines out against the wonderful Oriental architecture of the East. In California is a home that strikes that same note—the Laj Mahal—shining all fair—the beautiful creation that had its first inception in a woman's soul.

In the home at Wildwood, the Orient and the Occident meet, each calling out what is best in the other.

The dinner was remarkable in many ways. Among the guests, the women never looked so lovely as in

The table decorations were exquisite, and carried out the Spring ideal in baskets of early Spring flowers.

On some of the tables red and yellow tulips made a fine color combination, and the center table was an adorable study in blue.

Mrs. Isaac Regua had the place of honor at Mrs. Havens' right, and other guests at the table of the hostess were Mrs. Henry Wetherbee, Mrs. Moffitt, Dr. Buckel, Mrs. Helen Mygatt, Mrs. Selah Merrill, Miss Helen Todd, Miss Anita Whitney and Mrs. Fremont Older.

The day was so very lovely that the guests represented a Spring color scheme in the artistic costumes worn. Mrs. Regua wore a gown in soft gray tones, with a handsome hat to match. Mrs. Wetherbee made a charming picture in a gown of white lace, with a white hat to match the gown. Mrs. Gordon Stolp was in pale lavender, with a hat in mauve and violet tones. There were costumes in pale pink, and many of the guests were gowned in white, making the color tones of the luncheon the most fascinating of the series. It was a charming spring luncheon, ideal and very fascinating. For the program, served to render it all the more interesting, Miss Reigelman sang a beautiful spring aria, the clear tones rising in a note of rejoicing that "spring is here."

The ever fascinating "Donna E. Mobile" was beautifully sung by Sig. Manuel Carpio, and Mr. Paul Steindorff's orchestra added sweet music to add to the enjoyment of the luncheon guests. The speeches were most effective, and the speakers of the afternoon were Miss Helen Todd, Miss Anita Whitney and Miss Florence Locke.

Miss Todd is a most able speaker; her English is so perfect, and she has a quiet, forceful personality, very delightful and fascinating. She speaks with much refinement and dignity, and one feels that it is well with the world when such women as Miss Helen Todd lead the way. Miss Anita Whitney outlined the work of the civic centers throughout the State in a very able way, and Miss Florence Locke, who makes a delightful speech, in a most spontaneous fashion, outlined the work of the Oakland Civic Center, and made a plea for its support.

The attractive series of tableaux, "Spirits of the Past," in which famous women have been portrayed, has attracted the greatest interest. No finer number could have been presented on any program. The girls were all so beautiful, the costumes so well planned, and the ideas so perfectly represented. There were the women down the ages, who had led the way to "The Woman of Today." And the latter has a true friend, keeping pace with her as she presses forward with the future, for the lovely tableaux of the past melt into the ones of today—to that picture in Mrs. Havens' home of fair women, listening to the prophetic, "For I am Hope, and I am with you always."

Among the handsome gowns at Mrs. Havens' luncheon on Tuesday were those worn by:

Mrs. Moffitt	Mrs. Anna G. Freeman

With the Tuesday luncheon ended Mrs. Havens' series of entertainments for this spring, a series of most unique social events, which added more laurels to the fame of a charming hostess, and which gave unlimited pleasure to her large circle of friends.

ELABORATE DINNER PLANNED BY Y. W. C. A.

One of the most important social events of the month will be the elaborate dinner to be given on Tuesday evening under the direction of the board of managers of the Young Women's Christian Association. It is planned to entertain 500 people, and after that number have made reservations no more places will be saved. While the hall seats a much larger number, it is felt that comfort must be preserved, so that the many guests of the evening may thoroughly enjoy the unique dinner. There are many tables for eight guests, making it possible for a hostess to take this way of giving her guests a pleasant evening, and one unique in the fact that it seldom happens that 500 people may dine together in such a spirit of good comradeship.

The men who are to speak have asked that the dinner hour may be an early one, and because of this request it has been set at half after six. Mrs. F. M. Smith has taken great interest in the dinner, and the decorations of the many tables have been placed in her charge. Mrs. J. Loran the superb color effects, so restful and so charming.

The guests at Mrs. Havens' dinner were seated at round tables, each of the latter carrying a centerpiece of lovely rosebuds, in tones of pink and white. The house is admirably lighted from the outside, as well, and great white butterflies dashed against the windows, making charming pictures; and one saw in full relief the exquisite curtains, the beads of which were brought all the way from India, and strung in New York.

Mrs. Havens presided over the center table, and at her right was Hon. Hiram W. Johnson, the governor of California, as the guest of honor.

At another table was Mr. Havens, who had on his right Mrs. Johnson, who impressed everyone with her quiet personality and a sweet simplicity and rare charm of manner, which won for her many friends.

PROGRAM ARRANGED WITH SPECIAL CARE.

The dinner was varied by the program, which, as usual, Mrs. Havens had arranged with special care. Very fine solos were given by Mr. Marchant, a well-known artist from across the bay, and Mabel Reigelman astonished every one with the high, clear soprano voice, which has won such fame for her in the East; and Clara Alexander, the clever dialect reader, just home from London for a visit, gave wonderfully fine "darky" impersonations. Miss Alexander is a "never Southern" girl, brought up by one of the old "mammas" of the South, and she is giving to the world the childhood impressions received way down South in Dixie in the old plantation days.

She has been a great success in London, giving her clever "darky" sketches in the drawing-rooms of England's aristocratic smart set. There was a great deal of vim and enthusiasm in her work, and she deserved the appreciative applause that greeted her efforts.

After dinner, the guests adjourned to the living-room, where another delightful surprise awaited them. Indeed, one will not soon forget the picture of the many guests, grouped in the big room, where the straight dancing—almost the only light in the room. In picturesque groups, on the stairs, before the great fireplace, with its burning logs, the younger people in groups sitting on the floor, they awaited the last numbers on a wonderful program. At one end of the living-room the curtain went up on a charming 1911c theater, and it was suddenly flooded with a rosy glow;

it was morning—you knew Spring was here. And an exceedingly clever little dancer, with all the charming youth of the Springtime, gave a Spring dance.

She is Miss Ivy Paine, of Australia, a very young girl, who is on her way to New York, and who bids fair to be one of the most successful of the coming dancers. Her Spring dance was followed by a sea nymph study—a dance of the waves—with the green tones of the sea making an admirable color setting.

The third dance—a Hindoo dance—called "The Lotus Dance," was a remarkable effort. In it was the wail of a great race, the woe of the world, its helpless despair, its pathetic hopelessness, the end of an thing—and, again, Hope. This Lotus Dance was a wonderful poem in motion. It represents the struggle of man's consciousness in a supreme effort to know itself, representing the dancer gazing into the Lotus Pond; and on the miniature stage we saw the pond, surrounded by the lotus blooms. In the dance we saw man's struggle through hope and despair, and the joy and pain of living generally, until illumination of the soul finally results—and this was shown by the white light on the dancer at the very end.

And the lights went up, and there was the merry laugh again, and the bright, good time, enjoyed to the utmost, which Mrs. Havens had prepared for her guests. Among the latter were:

THIRD OF SERIES SUCCESSFUL AFFAIR.

The third and last of the series of luncheons which Mrs. Havens has planned in so wonderful a way took place on Tuesday, and a large number of guests assembled at Wildwood, the guest list being made up mostly from the Piedmont neighborhood. It was one of the most delightful luncheons of the series, the beautiful Spring day bringing out in the relief the picturesqueness of the grounds of Wildwood, and making the views everywhere of absorbing interest.

the softly shaded lights. Each was a beautiful study of lovely coloring, in exquisite tones. It was Tennyson's dream of fair women come true.

On all sides was some work of art, which the Oriental workman had poured out his life's best effort. It lent itself, carrying from over the Orient its wonderful atmosphere, to enhance the charm of the beautiful California women.

The dining-room, with its superb teakwood setting, is unique. It is the teakwood, against which there are no pictures in the big living-room and in the dining-room, which gives

WIFE KILLS RICH MILL OWNER AND SELF

James Brady Is Found Dead in Bed at Side of Lifeless Spouse.

SATTLE, April 20.—James Brady, a wealthy sawmill operator, and his wife were found dead in their bed at their home in Edmonds, twenty miles north of here, last night. Apparently Mrs. Brady had shot her husband and then had committed suicide.

It is believed that Mrs. Brady, who had been ill for some time and whose mind was affected, planned the murder of her husband with insane cunning and carried it into execution last night. Brady's body was found facing a mirror in which he usually could have seen every move his wife made. She apparently had circumvented this obstacle by covering the glass with a cloth. Mrs. Brady's hand was clutching the revolver when the bodies were found.

The discovery of the tragedy was made by O. G. Barnett, physician, who was visiting on the Brady home and who found the house closed when he arrived yesterday morning. Unable to arouse any one he went away, but returned tonight and forced an entrance.

Brady was about 50 years old and his wife was of the same age. Before coming to Washington twenty-three years ago, he was active in North Dakota politics. He was once a candidate for state auditor of Washington.

Swallows Bullet

SAN FRANCISCO, April 20.—Destructive of quitting this world for another where kindred husbands do not figure in the scheme of things, Mrs. Frank McCarthy, a comely young woman who lives at the Hotel Berlin in Valencia street, wrote a farewell note to her errant spouse last night, selected a fat, ugly looking snail, revolver, and crawled from a box, shut her eyes and swallowed it.

Then she rushed downstairs to the landlady's room and announced that she had shot herself, and would die in a minute.

"I didn't hear the shot," cried the landlady.

"Of course not, silly," said the would-be suicide. "I swallowed it. Why don't I die?"

A hurry call was sent for the police, and Mrs. McCarthy was rushed to the central emergency hospital, still alive but wondering why her coup hadn't succeeded.

"Just wanted to die," she told Dr. C. E. Lewis, "because I've had trouble with my husband. So I picked out the wickedest looking bullet I could find and gulped it down. Why don't I die?"

Lewis didn't answer, but started to probe for the cartridge with a strong syringe, with excellent results.

Wins Divorce

MODESTO, April 20.—Dr. P. N. Jacobson, of Turlock, who is the physician of the San Joaquin valley, was yesterday granted an interlocutory decree of divorce from his wife, Florence, on the grounds of infidelity and extreme cruelty.

In cross examining Mrs. Jacobson R. Fowler, one of the attorneys for the plaintiff, fired questions at Mrs. Jacobson which perceptibly unnerved her, she flushingly admitted she had written a letter to P. D. Callahan, the respondent in the case, and also admitted receiving a letter from Callahan.

On the filing of an amendment to the complaint in relation to an incident in Golden Gate Park, Judge Rector accepted the testimony given in substantiation of such charge. In the statement made from the bench, granting the decree to Dr. Jacobson, the judge granted the defense for the case they had entered.

Although Dr. Jacobson is one of the most successful physicians in the San Joaquin valley, and his income is rated at from $500 to $800 per month, Mrs. Jacobson was awarded only the piano and no alimony or any other property whatsoever.

The divorce case has been one of the most sensational tried in the Stanislaus county court and prominent business men of Modesto, including county officials, were mentioned in the cross-complaint of Mrs. Jacobson.

To Give Vaudeville

STANFORD UNIVERSITY, April 20.—The women of Stanford have united to give the broadest kind of a vaudeville show this evening, in entertainment of the hundreds of campus visitors who will remain over after the intercollegiate track meet.

Originality is the ideal of the co-eds, who have written the show and composed the musical numbers themselves. One of the features of the program is a "variety girls sextet," composed by Miss Mary Herndon of Palo Alto, one of the cleverest of Stanford's student writers and musicians. Fred Carlin of San Francisco is directing rehearsals for the dancing.

The following misses are included in the sextet: Bertha Steber, Chelama Noabitt, Ruth Taylor, Mary Waddell, Anna French, Gladys Briggs.

The vaudeville performance will be staged in the university assembly hall on the quadrangle, and visitors to the campus for the varsity athletic carnival will be welcome. Funds are to go to the women's clubhouse project and to the Stanford Union, the new meeting hall planned by the men.

Cap and gown is worn without ceremony which has charge of the performance has enlisted the aid of several of the college gymnasts. Dr. P. N. R. has arranged an acrobatic skill with the following cast:

Alexander, E. R. Knollin, Gus, A. T. Burns, K. K. K. captured in the wilds of Oregon, J. W. Howell.

Miss Roberta Hasset of Alameda will be featured in a novel "swing sextet," in which by means of a mechanical device of considerable ingenuity six co-eds will be hoisted out over the footlights to the accompaniment of "You've Got to Be a Molar to Win Around."

Lion Is Freed

LOS ANGELES, April 20.—Miss Viola Over, the Tacoma girl charged with the murder of J. Edwin Edger, a young race car operator, has been released from custody at the county jail.

The Importance of Little Things

By Lillian Russell

(Copyright, 1912, Lillian Russell.)

IN the day's run, how necessary it is to beauty and the order of things to attend to little things! It is the little things that make the big successes in life. It is just as important to have all of the buttons on a shoe as to have the shoe. All is part of the whole make-up. The woman who puts on an openwork silk stocking with a hole in the heel is an imperfect woman. And the woman who will go deliberately with a hole in her stocking will tell only half the truth where the whole truth is necessary to save a life. Negligence is an unpardonable sin. Many women, if quick to follow their natural instinct for helping others, would be positively great, and yet so many intend to do much and let it end there. Something prevents or so-called reason argues them conveniently out of it. As pennies accumulate to millions, so little deeds accumulate to great endeavors. Nothing begins at the top. All things worth while begin small and work up to completion.

In making for the beauty of face, form or personality, small matters must be watched and attended to thoroughly in order to accomplish success. To neglect washing the face before using creams or powder is as dangerous to the complexion as to neglect walking straight is to a perfect figure. In the making of personality small things count to an extraordinary degree. The persons who consider the feelings of smaller people gather a collection of good wishes that makes a strong force of thought in their favor. Good manners to servants command good manners from them. No person can be truly great without the backbone of good wishes from the masses. And these good wishes are incited only by good deeds, not intentions. No man knows so well as a great man what small attentions mean to his attendants. Big things are attained by degrees and persons are measured by the things they do, not by the things they say they do. Nothing beautifies both appearance and disposition so rapidly as right thinking. I do not mean a person's own opinion of what is right, for that may be prejudiced and biased. What I mean by right thinking is unselfishness and an utter absence of self-aggrandizement. That is a difficult thing to do; it is a constant fight with self—just stopping a second before speaking a quick, impatient word to a servant or child; thinking for a moment before letting impudence get the best of you; saying a kind word rather than a rude one.

Three days of such a practice in just the small things of the day will smooth out those impatient lines in the forehead between the eyes, also those at each side of the nose that have the power to age a girl of 16. Those little kind thoughts will become a habit, and gradually generosity will take the place of selfishness, and I know that generous minded women or men make the whole world of happiness. Happiness is heaven and heaven is happiness; it is right here with us if we have the generosity to see it. Satisfaction is not heavenly, but making others happy and understanding that we are in some way responsible for their happiness is heavenly. The expression of unselfishness is as soft and beautiful as an angel's wing. "There is no beauty in petty anger, in impatience, nor in silly rebuke. Small vices are the seeds that destroy all peace and beauty, the microbes that eat away the heart of happiness. Remember, the habit of kindness will smooth out the deepest wrinkles."

OAKLAND'S BOYS AND GIRLS

MAY DAY QUEEN TO BE NAMED FOR BIG FETE

Within a fortnight an election for the queen of the May day festival will be held in the playgrounds of this city. According to a statement issued by Superintendent of the Playgrounds, George E. Dickie, a systematic campaign will be held in these playgrounds, where royal attendants as well as the queen will be selected.

There will be much speculation over the queen, who will be chosen by ballot. The honor will be bestowed upon the most beautiful and popular girl. She must be an athlete and a leader in outdoor pastimes.

Several hundred children will appear in the folk dances, which will be given in the playgrounds. The old-fashioned May pole dances will be a feature of the exercises. The pupils of the local schools have been invited to take part in the celebration, which will be one of the novel events of the year.

MAXINE ELLIOTT

Volley ball is one of the leading activities for the girls in the De Fremery Park playground. Among the most successful exponents of that game is Maxine Elliott. Although the basketball contests have closed for the season in De Fremery Park playgrounds the girls play games occasionally.

The boys and girls are interested in the inter-playground athletic tournaments, which were recently inaugurated by the playground directors. The games have attracted crowds of children from the local schools. Legions of athletes have shown their appreciation of out-of-door sports.

California wild flower day is an annual event. The purpose of the project is to educate the children in the appreciation of the flora of the state, and to contribute the greater portion of the exhibition.

WELL ATTENDED DANCE AT HOME CLUB

One of the most delightful dances of the season was given at the Home Club on Wednesday evening when Mrs. Edward Remillard entertained most happily nearly 200 guests. The guests of honor were Miss Ethel Johnson and Dr. Elmer Brinkerhoff, whose engagement was an early announcement of the year.

The decorations at the Home Club were in pink, and the round table of the hostess was a charming study in pink wreaths and pink Duchess roses.

Mrs. Remillard was assisted in receiving her guests by Mrs. Isaac Requa, Mr. and Mrs. James A. Johnson, Miss Johnson, Dr. Elmer Brinkerhoff, Dr. and Mrs. Erwin Brinkerhoff, Mr. and Mrs. James Shepherd Jenks, Dr. and Mrs. Murray Johnson, Mr. and Mrs. John Shuey, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Shuey, Mr. and Mrs. Van Hooser, Dr. and Mrs. J. The dance was exceedingly enjoyable, an elaborate supper was served at midnight, and the young people happy enough to be Mrs. Remillard's guests greatly enjoyed their evening.

Mrs. Victor Metcalf, who entertained eighteen guests in honor of her thirtieth wedding anniversary. SHOES BOUGHT IN 1859 ARE STILL SERVICEABLE

BOSTON, April 20.—A pair of shoes in the possession of James O'Sullivan, an India street merchant, have been lying around since the spring of 1859, when he purchased them in London. They are still serviceable, though out of fashion, and look good for another century or so of wear.

The shoes were actually worn for two years steadily in England, and then saw service in Australia, where they were in use, off and on, for some eighteen years. Afterward, when Mr. O'Sullivan came to America, he used them in the work on the Ashland Dam, where he was a construction foreman. He paid 3 shillings, or about $2, for the shoes, and considers the investment among his best, though he has made many profitable ones.

ROOSEVELT LEADERS MEET IN CITY OF OAKLAND

LA FOLLETTE ON FRUITLESS MISSION, ASSERTS JOHNSON

Large Meeting of Roosevelt Supporters Is Held at Macdonough Theater

At a well-attended and enthusiastic meeting of Roosevelt Republicans last night in the Macdonough Theater, Governor Hiram Johnson spoke on the issues of the presidential primary, the aims of the Roosevelt supporters, and the policies of Progressive Republicanism. Charles E. Snook opened the meeting, presenting State Senator Edward J. Tyrrell as chairman. Tyrrell, after an extremely brief address, introduced the speaker of the evening, who was cheered as he rose. The stage of the theater was decorated in flags and bunting, and a brass band in front of the theater gathered large crowds.

Division in the ranks of the Republicans leaning toward the Progressive, caused by La Follette's entering the race, was decried by Johnson, who stated that the invasion of California by the Wisconsin senator was due to personal ambition that would not be gratified.

That a great progressive Roosevelt movement is sweeping the country, and will turn the tide for his candidate, was the statement of the chief executive of California, after calling attention to reforms favored by the Colonel.

"SPIRIT OF WEST."

"Roosevelt has the progressive spirit of the West, that spirit which has been this half of the great continent from the deserts, forests and mountains," he said. "That progressive Western spirit is sweeping all over the country. It caused the regeneration of machine-ridden Illinois, when that State gave Roosevelt the majority of the delegates. It caused Pennsylvania to throw out the trust policy, and it has penetrated even the confines of rock-ridden New England.

CAUSE, NOT MAN.

"We are particularly fortunate in California today. This is the only State which has a preferential Presidential primary. This great preference primary, within the next four years, will sweep the country. When the Presidential nominations for 1916 are made, every State in the union will have the Presidential primary, due to the progressive spirit inaugurated by Theodore Roosevelt.

"Our campaign for the nomination of Roosevelt on the Republican ticket, we are struggling for a cause, not a man. It is the cause of progression, represented by the man, we are here to work and to win. We have gained in California, but we wish to extend the progressive movement to every other State in the union, and to free them, through its action, from the pernicious influence of big business, the machine politician and corporation domination.

"This campaign is an educational one. It will be a campaign of achievement, which will find its realization in the nomination of Theodore Roosevelt for President. He has accomplished more in a few months than the balance of us could in a year."

NOT A FIGURE.

That La Follette was not a national candidate and had no standing as such outside Wisconsin, Nebraska, Oregon, Minnesota and possibly California, and that President Taft and Colonel Roosevelt were the only Republican candidates of national importance, was asserted by the speaker.

"La Follette coming into this state to spend three and a half weeks here in endeavoring to secure the votes of only twenty-six delegates at the national convention with any serious hope of winning the nomination for President, is a candidate for President," asked Governor Johnson. "He can't hope to accomplish nothing here but to break down that which we have won here in the last two years. No man from the East can come into California with the idea of advancing the political education of our people, because California is politically the foremost in the union.

"If the question is raised as to the political fortunes of the senator, I am willing to leave it between a Houser and Houser's principal, as against Gifford and Amos Pinchot, William Kent, Senators Works and Clapp, and many other progressives of standing."

GOVERNOR JOHNSON read a long dispatch from Senator J. M. Dixon, manager of Roosevelt's campaign, in which the delegates of South Carolina who were instructed for the President before the Roosevelt boom was launched, were said to have repudiated their instructions and announced themselves for Roosevelt. That this was the beginning of the end of the Taft campaign and signified a serious defeat among Southern delegates, was Johnson's statement.

DEBATES STANDPATTERNS.

"Every old gray standpatter rat will be forced to his hole by the great progressive movement that is sweeping this country for Theodore Roosevelt," said Johnson, after using Sam Dwyer's story of the rat which, after three drinks of forty-rod whisky, went looking for the cat.

On the stage were a large number of vice-presidents, among them a large number of women. To these Johnson made a special appeal.

"The women of California are the only women who have a real vote in nominating candidates for the presidency," said he, "as in other states where equal suffrage rules the convention system of selecting delegates is still clung to with the tenacity of the old-line politicians. The New York primary has marked the end of the convention epoch, and it is likely that by the next presidential election conventions will be a thing of the past."

TYRRELL SPEAKS.

In opening the meeting Senator Tyrrell introduced Johnson as "the fighting governor," and urged that Roosevelt be supported as a fighter of the same type. "The day of progressive Republicanism is arrived," he said, "and it is to be hoped that there will be no split in the ranks."

"We hope to show the voters of the state, in whose penetration we have the utmost faith, that the progressive policies of Roosevelt are as worthy of support as those of the governor whom we swept to victory, on the policies which Roosevelt stands for. The day of the old line politician is past, and we hope to elect a man like Johnson, the 'fighting governor,' as President. Roosevelt has devoted the last ten years of his life to one long fight for the rights of the people of the United States, and will, I believe, be in a position to devote at least four more after the next presidential election. He is a president for the people, and his record is sufficient to need little explanation from me. Our chief executive, who is to speak tonight, can, perhaps, tell you more than I."

"I am pleased to say that Johnson, in opening the meeting, 'to see that the people of Oakland, and especially the women, are taking a keen interest in the campaign, and are coming to hear what the candidates and their policies mean. I will not speak much tonight, as we have with us a man who can better set forth the policies of Colonel Theodore Roosevelt than myself, but I wish to state that he typifies the spirit of the great West, and that he is a fighter for the rights of the people, as his past record will show."

WORKMAN BURIED IN BAD CAVE-IN

Tons of Sand Cover Laborer and He Is Rescued Too Late.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 20.—Buried in a cave-in at Eddy and Leavenworth streets at 9 o'clock this morning, Michael Mastulla, a laborer 35 years old, was rescued from beneath tons of sand too late to do anything to save his life.

Mastulla with other workmen was engaged in digging for the salt water system reservoir when a bank of sand suddenly gave way and he was buried. His companions thought only of sending for an ambulance and when Stew and Thomas arrived he discovered that the unfortunate man had not yet been rescued.

The steward sent in a fire alarm and the department quickly dug the victim out. The delay, however, had been fatal and although there was a spark of life left when he was dragged to the surface, by the time the Central Emergency hospital was reached he had succumbed. Mastulla resided at 72 1/2 California avenue.

NATIONAL GALLERY OPENED FOR BOY

King of England Grants Special Permit to Richmond W. Strong.

To permit one Oakland boy to see the art treasures of England before leaving the country, the National Gallery, at London, was opened for an hour, at the instance of Ambassador Whitelaw Reid. The gallery is closed because the government fears that stones hurled by suffragettes might injure the statues and paintings. No one had been permitted in the gallery for a month before Richmond W. Strong of 3745 Telegraph avenue secured a special permit for admission.

Strong, who is a student at the University of California, and a member of the Phi Sigma Kappa fraternity, writes that the permit was secured from the king, through the influence of the ambassador.

"I did not expect to get it when I wrote to Mr. Reid," he said in his letter, received by his sister, Miss Margaret Strong, yesterday. "I wrote as a last chance, three days before leaving London, and the next day was notified that I would be admitted."

"I wrote to Mr. Reid that I had worked for some time to earn enough money for the trip, that I had long wished to see the treasures in the National Gallery, and that I could not stay longer, and asked if there was any way in which a permit could be secured. The next day I received a note from Mr. Reid, stating that he had taken up the matter, and that I would be allowed to enter."

"It seemed funny to me to see all the attendants of the gallery, summoned to show one California boy through the gallery. The windows of the gallery are closed with iron shutters, and every precaution is being taken to keep out the suffragettes, who have threatened to destroy the gallery."

Strong will make a bicycle tour of Europe before returning to this country.

Day Ideal for Record-Breaking Contests at Motordrome

It was a clear spring day that greeted the big crowd at the Motordrome, gathered to witness the first of two days of spectacular and record-breaking automobile races.

As early as 1 p. m. when the gates were thrown open, a waiting crowd was on hand anxious to get a preliminary glimpse of some of the big cars in action. Weather conditions for fast time could hardly have been more favorable. There was an absence of disagreeable winds, which would tend to hinder the chances of any new marks.

The Shrine Patrol band, wearing uniforms, was playing all the popular airs long before the first race was called, and the music served to keep the spectators in good humor.

FAMOUS POET DIES IN THE SOUTH

Robt. Cameron Rogers Passes Away as Result of Operation.

SANTA BARBARA, April 20.—Robert Cameron Rogers, poet and newspaper publisher, died in his home here this morning at 5 o'clock from the effects of an operation performed two weeks ago to relieve him of appendicitis.

Rogers was born in Buffalo, N. Y., on January 7, 1862, and was the son of Sherman Rogers, at one time a member of the same law firm with Grover Cleveland. The father served on the first civil service commission during the first Cleveland administration.

Rogers moved to Santa Barbara seven years ago and married Mrs. Beatrice Roberts, daughter of the late Judge H. H. Fernald, a pioneer jurist of this county. He leaves besides the widow, three sons and two step-sons, whom he adopted.

Added to the books of poems and some prose, Rogers wrote the dedication poem for the opening of the Buffalo Pan-American Exposition, and the Elks' Encyclopedia, which has already been adopted by many lodges as part of the annual lodge of service.

His most famous work, however, was "The Rosary," which has been translated into many languages. Rogers was at the time of his death a member of the Panama-Pacific State Exposition Commission.

DALTON COMPANY IS SUING CITY

Henry Dalton & Sons Company, a corporation, has commenced its efforts to prevent the city of Oakland from carrying out its development work on the waterfront by filing suit to have work stopped, and the stretch of water leading to their plant on the shores of the bay left open. In substance the suit is practically the same in intent as that which was recently thrown out of court on the ground that the city of Oakland had paramount wharfing-out rights and that the corporation could not reserve them to itself.

The plaintiff contends that it has been deprived of valuable shipping facilities through the municipal dredging operations. It cites that the corporation alleged has riparian rights on the bay shore, and that the line of wharves to be constructed by the city cuts off shipping facilities and connections to the government bulkhead line.

WOMEN ESCAPE INJURY IN AUTO

Train Hits Machine Carrying Wife of Berkeley Recall Leader.

BERKELEY, April 20.—Mrs. Fred G. Athearn, wife of F. G. Athearn of the Southern Pacific, prominent in the local recall situation, had a narrow escape from serious injury when an automobile in which she was riding with Y. Arntzen of the University of California and Mrs. Arntzen was struck by a Southern Pacific train carrying a street car.

The machine was driving along Alcatraz avenue a little after nine o'clock. Arntzen, who was driving, believed he could cross California street ahead of the approaching local, but miscalculated the latter's speed and failed to clear the tracks before the train was upon him. The train was slowing down at the time, and to this fact is due the auto party's escape from more serious injury.

The automobile was knocked to one side of the track but not overturned. Arntzen was hurled against the driving gear and severely cut and bruised. Mrs. Arntzen and Mrs. Athearn were shaken up but otherwise escaped.

COL. ROOSEVELT CARRIES OREGON AND NEBRASKA

Two-Thirds of Counties of the Northern State Go for T. R.

PORTLAND, Ore., April 20.—Under the presidential preference primaries Theodore Roosevelt is the choice of the Republican voters of Oregon. He has carried two-thirds of the counties of the state.

Senator Robert M. La Follette carried Multnomah county, where one-fourth of the voters and population of the state is located. President Taft carried but ten of the thirty-four counties running a poor third in Multnomah.

Under the Oregon system, the ten delegates sent to the Republican national convention at Chicago are instructed to vote for Roosevelt. Thomas McClellan, La Follette's manager in Oregon, leads the ticket among the candidates for delegates.

It was in the "Cow Counties" of Oregon that Roosevelt made his strongest run, with La Follette second. Through the thickly populated Willamette valley district Roosevelt also led.

STRONG IN PORTLAND.

In Portland where the labor vote is strong, La Follette was the choice. Wherever La Follette spoke during his five days in the state he made a remarkable showing.

For the Democratic endorsement, Woodrow Wilson and Champ Clark are running close, with Wilson in the lead. The Harmon vote is practically all in a majority of the counties.

In the Republican Congressional race W. C. Hawley, now representing the first district, has been renominated. He had no opposition. N. J. Simont, progressive, has been nominated in the second district over W. R. Ellis, his closest opponent. Ellis has served several terms in Congress.

The result in the third district is still in doubt, with the contest between A. W. Lafferty, incumbents, and C. U. Ganter. This district comprises Multnomah county.

AUCTION IS HELD ON BIG FAIR SITE

Property Sold in Order to Clear Land at Harbor View.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 20.—Things are beginning to assume a bustling air on the Harbor View site of the Panama-Pacific exposition, and the signs of work which are in evidence here and there make the rapidly-approaching fair seem all the more real.

The auction was held at Jay street and Van Ness avenue and one of the conditions of the sale was that they must be removed within thirty days from their present location.

When they are out of the way the work of constructing sewer conduits and water mains will be begun, and it will only be a short time before a town springs up where there is now little but vacant lots and spaces.

A number of specimens of firs from the Hawaiian Islands are being exhibited at the information bureau of the Panama-Pacific exposition, and President Moore has invited the public to inspect them. They are rare and beautiful and were presented by George M. Rolph, brother of the mayor.

My trouble has been with the liver. My skin and eyes were all yellow; I had sleepless, drowsy feelings; felt like a drunken man; pain right above the navel, like as if it were bile on top of the stomach. My bowels were constipated. DOUBLE TRACKING ROW AT MARTINEZ

Difficulties to Be Discussed at Conference Monday Morning.

MARTINEZ, April 20.—The difficulties between the representatives of the district attorney's office and the lawyers of the San Francisco, Oakland Terminal railways, owner of the East Shore and Suburban railroads, over the alleged laying of tracks by the company in the county roads without a franchise will be discussed at a conference to be held here on Monday morning.

The railway sought a franchise to lay single or double track between Berkeley and Richmond many years ago. It was given two years in which to take full advantage of the franchise. A single track was laid, but no effort was made to take advantage of the double track provision of the franchise until recently, long after the two years had expired.

When a construction crew began work last week laying a second track residents of Stoga and Pullman made a protest. They declared that the company had no right to lay a parallel track, which would further encroach on the county roads. Wednesday they filed a formal complaint with the district attorney and asked him to take action.

About 300 men have been engaged in laying the track. They will be paid off and work will be temporarily suspended until recently, long after the two years had expired.
